Nazis' Czech Premier Is Seized for 'Treason'; 'Hostile Acts' Charged

FLYING BATTLESHIP—So huge that a three-ton Martin B-26 medium bomber can nestle beneath its wing, this largest flying boat ever built is nearing completion for the Navy. It was wheeled into the open yesterday at the Glenn L. Martin Company in Baltimore for finishing touches. With a gross weight of 70 tons and 200-foot wingspread, the ship will be the first to carry a motorboat. As a troop transport, the four-motored giant could carry 150 men fully equipped. It is due to undergo its first tryouts for seaworthiness in tests November 15.

Hitler Fearful Of Separate Italian Peace

Mussolini Reportedly Ordered To Declare Martial Law.

By International News Service.

LONDON, Sept. 29. (Monday.)—Fearful that Italy's population wants a separate peace with Britain and her Allies, Nazi Germany has demanded that Premier Benito Mussolini declare martial law throughout his nation and give Nazi military authorities wide police powers, the London Daily Express reported early today in a dispatch from the Italian frontier.

Mussolini, deeply embarrassed by these demands, is expected to confer with Hitler shortly, said the paper. Meanwhile, he has called a conference of Fascist chieftains in Rome for today.

The dispatch stated that Germany has demanded the right to have Nazi military advisors sit in at all courts-martial and has threatened to occupy all Italy if the Gestapo (secret police) and Schutzstaffel (SS troops) are not permitted to carry out control duties.

Heinrich Himmler, head of the Gestapo, will probably go to Rome shortly to convince Mussolini that the Nazis will wipe out all anti-Fascist feeling if they are given full sway to their powers, the dispatch added.

NEW RESTRICTIONS ON JEWS ORDERED

BERLIN, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The Transportation Ministry issued new restrictions for Jews today and the newspaper Berliner Boersen Zeitung forecast additional stringent steps against the Jews, possibly including the ghetto.

Jews, who are now discernible by the Star of David sewn on their clothes, are permitted to enter street cars, buses and other public conveyances only if these are sufficiently empty so that no waiting non-Jews need remain behind.

Once in the conveyances, the Jews may sit down only if all others have seats. The decree provides that the German press shall not publish these restrictions, which must be made known to Jews through their own organizations.

ORDERED TO REPORT JEWS IN FRANCE

PARIS, German-Occupied France, Sept. 28.—(AP)—A notice issued today by the Paris prefecture ordered all Jews over 15, whether French or foreign, to report regularly to French authorities beginning October 1.

Marion Miley Slain By Masked Gunmen

Famous Golfer's Mother Critically Wounded by Robbers.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 28.—(INS)—Almost completely without clues, police tonight sought two men, one tall and the other medium sized, for the murder of Miss Marion Miley, 27, noted golf star, and the wounding of her mother, Mrs. Elsa A. Miley.

Fingerprint experts of the Lexington police department hoped to furnish the most tangible evidence. The bandit pair early today shot Mrs. Miley three times and her daughter twice, and escaped with $145 in cash, at the lonely Lexington Country Club, 3½ miles north of the city.

On the walls of a small hall linking the bedrooms of the mother and daughter were large, nearly full-sized handprints, apparently left there as the pretty links queen fought desperately with her attackers before falling to the floor fatally wounded.

A telephone which the burglars grabbed as one of the women, believed to have been Miss Miley, attempted to telephone for help, was jerked from the wall at the side of Mrs. Miley's bed, which bore deep bloodstains, indicating she was shot in bed.

Miss Miley's room was untouched, police said, leading to the theory she ran to her mother's room when awakened, and was shot as she ran toward the stair-

Germans Call Extensive State Of Emergency

Deputy Reich Protector Cracks Down on Six Districts.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

BERLIN, Sept. 28.—Czech Premier General Alois Elias was arrested today on a charge of "preparation for high treason" and a state of civil emergency was decreed for six districts in the German protectorate of Bohemia-Moravia because of "a number of actions hostile to the Reich."

Deputy Reich's Protector Reinhard Heydrich, hard-hitting right-hand man of German Police Chief Heinrich Himmler, ordered the state of emergency within 24 hours after formally relieving 68-year-old Baron Konstantin von Neurath. Von Neurath was said to have requested a temporary leave because of failing health.

Co-operation Pledged.

Heydrich called on President Dr. Emil Hacha to tell his reasons for ordering the state of emergency and arresting the premier.

He received from Hacha a pledge of co-operation on the part of the protectorate officials and issued a statement saying "it is expected of the population, which in majority recognizes as a fact the common destiny of the European peoples with Germany, that it will not permit itself in any way to be provoked by enemies of the Reich."

There was no immediate official explanation of the "number of actions hostile to the Reich."

Hostile Acts Cited.

The official announcement said Heydrich told the president that "in recent days irresponsible elements in the pay of the enemies of Europe have committed a number of actions hostile to the Reich."

These elements, he continued, "through propaganda connected with these acts sought to bring the population of the protectorate into opposition to the interests of the Reich."

Passive resistance of the Czechs has frequently been a source of trouble to the Germans since Adolf Hitler dismembered the republic.

A sign of recent increased ac-

Battle Rages in Mediterranean

Italy, Britain Engaged in Air, Sea Struggle

Seven Cities Attacked in Broad Offensive by RAF.

ROME, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Italy and Britain are engaged in another of their great running battles between air and seapower in the western Mediterranean, the Italian high command announced succinctly today.

The Italian Air Force was said to be attacking "a large enemy naval formation sailing from Gibraltar"—probably a convoy under heavy warship guard. From the communique it appeared to be still too early for the Italians to list any results of the gigantic duel.

The first concise word of the battle came in a communique which acknowledged that Britain's own air force, apparently on one of its broadest offensives, had struck at not less than seven Italian cities in Libya, Sicily and Sardinia.

The British raiders were said to have struck at Bengasi and Bardia on the Libyan coast, Agrigento, Marsala, Trapani and Porto Empedocle in Sicily, and Cagliari, Sardinia.

The communique said three civilians were killed and eight wounded at Porto Empedocle. It announced five British planes were shot down in different raids, including one brought down by Italian reconnaissance planes in the Cufra zone, Libya.

(A British Middle East command communique named similar air raid objectives and added that a medium-sized freighter was left "practically sunk" south of Taranto, southern Italy.

(The British communique

High School 'Rush Week' Over; Pledges Tired But Triumphant

Mothers Breathe Sigh of Relief as Daughters Finally Get Pinned—Everything Is Normal Again.

By CELESTINE SIBLEY.

They may look like socked and saddle-oxforded little high school girls—a figure almost standard the nation over—but a couple of hundred young women who are returning to classrooms today have just emerged, tired but for the most part triumphant, after the rigors of Rush Week.

Elsewhere in the nation rush week for high school sororities is prone to create only a mild flurry of interest. But in Atlanta, where the Big Four, a quartet of local but nonetheless omnipotent sororities, hold sway, Rush Week is of such general interest that a photographer from a nationally known picture magazine flies here from New York to record the events on film. Mothers and fathers join in and even the police lend a hand, furnishing an escort for trips to the fair.

"But it's all over now," breathed one weary mother last night, stepping out of her shoes to relax "for the first time in a week."

"The girls will go back to school, have relatively quiet meetings and attend to their initiations themselves."

The four sororities, Phi Pi, Sigma Delta, O. B. X. and Pi Pi, climaxed the events of Rush Week yesterday with a series of parties to receive pledges.

Pins were placed over palpitating young hearts and after a week of using every wile known to womanhood—even 'teen-age womanhood—to win attractive pledges, the sisters were glad to relax and enjoy their victory.

Officially recognized by no high school, the sororities draw their membership for the most part from Washington Seminary, North Fulton High school and North Avenue Presbyterian school. All of them are old, established organizations and despite the frenzied activity of Rush Week many of the girls know from kindergarten days on that they eventually will get a bid and pledge the same sorority that their mother pledged.

Founded as social organizations, each of the sororities has some pet charity and plans its program for the year to include script dances or other benefit events to raise funds for the Egleston Children's hospital or for a crippled children's fund.

Although strictly local in their scope, the four Atlanta sororities function under rules laid down by the Pan-Atlantic council. The important rule is that no sorority may spend money on a rushee or take her out in a car until September 28, the day the rushing officially ended.

"After that," the mother of a Phi Pi explained, "they can and do go hog wild."

Automobiles are decorated with sorority colors and used to ferry rushees in droves from one function to another. Picnics, barbecues, teas, luncheons, and snazzy dinner parties are all lined up to bedazzle the young rushee and make her unconscious of the scintillating charms of any other group.

But yesterday morning the rushing was over and the rushees became pledges. In a week or two, however, it undoubtedly will start all over again. They will be "rats."

Record Crowd JamsLakewood Park for Fair

Estimated 65,000 Turn Out as Warm Sun Beams Down.

(Picture on Page 18.)

With a warm sun beaming down, the Southeastern World's Fair yesterday set a new attendance record, Mike Benton, president, announced.

"It's the biggest Sunday crowd I have ever seen," he said as he looked over the sea of humanity packing the midway, overrunning the grandstand and milling through the exhibition buildings.

"There must be 65,000 people here today."

Benton said automobiles jammed traffic on Pryor road long before the park gates were opened at noon and within two hours it was necessary to park on the track cars which were unable to get into the huge parking lot.

Everett Mitchell, of Chicago, director of the "Farm and Home" hour, a daily nationwide program, arrived early in the afternoon and immediately began studying livestock and other farm products for his program, which will be broadcast from the Hall of States building at the fairgrounds today.

The midway was in full blast, running on a full speed program, and its assortment of shows, riding devices and other attractions were doing capacity business.

In addition to the Farm and Home program to be broadcast from the grounds today, Mrs. A. F. G. Leigh-White, of London, international director of the Girl Scouts, will speak in front of the grandstand at 4:05 o'clock this afternoon, as Girl Scouts Day will be observed.

Mrs. Leigh-White, who recently arrived in America from war torn London, will tell of war activities of British Girl Scouts, how they have helped in first aid work, rescue work, and in extinguishing fires started by incendiary bombs.

Man Surprised In Home Here; Suspect Seized

Peachtree Household Is Aroused by Woman's Screams.

A burglar suspect who was surprised in a room at the home of Mrs. Rebecca Mangum at 630 Peachtree street, was captured following a chase to North avenue, between Peachtree and West Peachtree streets, it was reported yesterday by Radio Patrolmen R. W. Edmondson and W. H. Bailey.

According to the patrolmen, Mrs. Julia Wooten, who occupies a room on the first floor of the Mangum residence, screamed when she awoke and saw a man in her room taking from a chair her purse containing $20. Her cries aroused the household, and the man dashed out the front door.

L. H. Fender, 25, one of the occupants of the house, ran out in pursuit. The suspect gave his name as B. F. Henderson, 50, of Atlanta. Police said a $30 watch belonging to Hugh Burnett, another resident in the Peachtree street address, was found on the suspect, who was lodged in the city jail on a charge of suspicion of burglary.

British Airmen Quit Crowded Ship in Protest

Pilots Walk Off Vessel In Canadian Port, Flay Conditions.

OTTAWA, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The Air Ministry said tonight that 200 airmen and not 1,000 as reported from an eastern Canadian port walked off the dock when they were scheduled to sail recently aboard a transatlantic transport.

More than two-thirds of the contingent boarded the vessel and now have arrived overseas, the Air Ministry statement said.

Canadian, Australian, New Zealand and British airmen walked off a troop transport in protest against conditions under which they claimed they would have to live in crossing the Atlantic.

A Canadian sergeant pilot said many did not return to the transport and were brought before a court of inquiry on charges of disobeying orders.

The sergeant pilot told the Canadian Press that the men were "jammed in like sardines" aboard the ship.

'Not Bad!' Says Jane Wyman After Toomey's 3-Minute Kiss

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Up goes Hollywood's record for the longest movie kiss. Up, too, goes Regis Toomey's blood pressure.

The two are closely related. The record is Toomey's—and blond Jane Wyman's. Three minutes, five seconds, is the new mark.

The old record was 56.2 seconds, established a year ago by Ann Sheridan and George Brent.

The record was set unconsciously—and uncomfortably, on a piano bench—for a scene in "You're In the Army Now."

Director Lew Seiler told the pair to start kissing when he yelled "action."

They did, just as Donald MacBride, Jane's father and an Army colonel, began a spiel about the superiority of cavalry over mechanized divisions. His audience, clinching happily, paid no attention. MacBride, wrapped up in his work, talked on and on, illustrating his lecture by pointing out portraits of famous generals.

Three minutes passed thus. Then he noticed them.

"Say," he observed, 'I don't think you're even listening."

Only then did Seiler call "cut."

Toomey leaned back, trying not to breathe hard.

"This," he grinned manfully, "is the life. All these years I've played pals to leading men and big brothers to leading ladies."

A look of respectful admiration was in Miss Wyman's eyes.

"Not bad. Not bad," she murmured, softly.

JANE WYMAN.

Army Life Helps an Appetite, 4 Soldiers Agree While Eating Free $2.25 Steaks

Camp Wheeler Men Are Weekend Guests of Hotel Here.

"The Army helps a man to build up his appetite."

That was the unanimous verdict of Privates Earl J. Fletcher, Jesse W. Lewis, Eugene M. Burch, and George M. Harris, members of the 9th Training Battalion, Camp Wheeler, Ga., as they completed their act of making four steaks, costing $2.25 each, vanish from the table.

The four soldiers, top men last week on the camp's rifle range, were weekend guests of the Robert Fulton hotel. Following the dinner, they were given tickets to a local theater, a little midnight snack to tide them over until breakfast, and yesterday, with Leo J. Ethier, manager of the hotel, were shown the sights of the city.

The hotel, which has been entertaining a soldier per week for the past several months, recently decided to be host to four each weekend. The men from Camp

ON THE HOUSE—And how! When the management of the Robert Fulton hotel told these four special guests to go into the dining room and "order anything you like," the guests did just that—and ordered the $2.25 steak! Burden of Debt Lifted With Helpful Loan

Simplified Loan Plan Clears All Bills With One Stroke of the Pen.

For any one of a dozen good reasons, hundreds of Atlantans find themselves owing plaguy old bills which just cannot be paid all at once. Then creditors who want their money are apt to become impatient, causing unpleasantness and worry.

A plan has been worked out by a leading Atlanta financial institution whereby a person can borrow sufficient money to pay all of these outstanding obligations and then repay the money on a monthly basis, at legal rate of interest, over a year or 18 months.

Another important feature of the plan is that the amount of money can vary with the needs of the individual borrower, often as low as $50.00 and sometimes as high as $1,000.00 or more.

Under this low cost plan available at the Southern Security and Investment Corporation, loans can be made on a plain note, automobile, furniture, diamonds or almost anything of value and every transaction is entirely confidential.

Readers of this advertisement, who need money for any purpose, are invited to visit the Southern Security and Investment Corporation, located on the 4th Floor of the 22 Marietta Street Building on the corner of Broad and Marietta Streets, where every effort is made to render a friendly, helpful service.

New Defense Mill To Start Making TNT

Built at $35,000,000 Cost, Construction Took 10 Months.

WELDON SPRING, Mo., Sept. 28.—(AP)—There will be no whistle blowing . . . no pressing a button . . . not even any speechmaking.

Without any of the customary fanfare, Uncle Sam's newest hurry-up munitions mill, the $35,000,000 Weldon Spring ordnance works, simply will start production tomorrow of TNT—it resembles brown sugar—for bombs and large shells.

The first of 14 production lines comprising the rambling but half-hidden plant which transformed this peaceful farming community—once the home of Daniel Boone—into a key link in the "arsenal of democracy" will be set in operation, roughly, 10 months after construction began. Other units, including two for the manufacture of DNT, will go into use gradually.

Major Carl R. Dutton, youthful appearing Army chemist and commanding ordnance officer, said production capacity of the plant, which will be operated by the Atlas Powder Company, is regarded as a military secret.

Starting out as a $14,000,000 project, it was ordered expanded in June, and work is just beginning on the second half.

The plant area covers approximately 18,000 acres of once fertile farm land and includes three former small townsites. When finally completed, it will not only be one of the largest of its kind, but one of the best camouflaged, both from land and air.

"The entire plant was designed on a basis that it can be completely camouflaged," Major Dutton said. "In time, the only thing one will be able to see around here from the air are a few water towers."

Admits Night Clubbing While Wife Lay Slain

Alabaman Says He Made Rounds While Body Was in Trunk.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 28.—(AP) Police Captain Fred Williams said today that Charles Napoleon Ney, 60-year-old retired mail carrier charged with slaying his elderly wife, admitted he had made a round of French Quarter night clubs while her body lay stuffed in a trunk in his room.

Ney, according to Williams, still denied knowledge of how his wife, the former Mrs. Edith B. Lane, 60, of Boston, had met her death, but disclosed he had been "practically broke" until his marriage to the woman last June and now had thousands of dollars.

Williams said Ney, claiming to be a great-great-great-grandson of Napoleon's famous Marshal Ney, also told him he had been an inmate of the Alabama State Mental Hospital at Tuscaloosa in 1906 and again in 1938 and was divorced by his first wife three years ago for excessive drinking.

Suspect's Story.

Williams said Ney told this story:

He was raised at Talladega, Ala., educated at the University of Heidelberg, Germany, and obtained a degree there but decided not to practice medicine and returned to Talladega to farm.

He used the name James Hayden because Hayden was the name of his mother's second husband. Her first husband, Charles Napoleon Ney, the arrested man's father, died in Paris when he was 3 years old.

He became a mail carrier, but was pensioned off at $68 a month two years ago. Shortly after going to St. Petersburg, Fla., last April, he met Mrs. Lane, widow of a Boston dentist, and married her by proxy in mid-May when she was in Boston and he was in New Orleans.

The couple was married by a justice of the peace in Miami in June, but it was shortly after meeting Mrs. Lane that he entered the jewelry business, earning as much as $10,000 a month, 100 per cent. of which was clear profit."

Mrs. Ney complained Thursday to Mrs. Edward Aldige, landlady of the apartment the couple had rented the day before, that she was "upset" and wanted to leave, but Ney told Mrs. Aldige, "Don't pay any attention to my wife."

Ney went "night - clubbing" Wednesday, Thursday and Friday nights and early Saturday morning "smelled an odor from the trunk and saw blood and thought it best to take it back to Talladega so the police there could open it."

Ney said he had accompanied his wife to a train—she was returning to Boston to see an ill brother whose name he did not know—Thursday night.

"I thought when I smalled the odor from the trunk," Williams quoted Ney as saying, "that maybe my wife had gotten jealous over some woman and had killed the woman." He said he did not open the trunk to investigate.

Limbless Pilot Fails To Escape; Germans Pull (Artificial) Leg

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Douglas Bader, the RAF pilot who became a fighting ace even though he had no legs, tried to escape from his German captors as soon as he got a new metal leg by special RAF parachute delivery, it was reported tonight.

The story, as told by Harry W. Flannery, CBS correspondent in a broadcast from Berlin, was that Bader tried to get away August 19, the night the new leg arrived at the French airdrome where he was held to replace one damaged when he was forced down.

German Major Eric von Bach was quoted as saying a celebration was held in honor of the event.

"There was a little drinking, I guess," said the major, "and Bader danced and turned somersaults and generally enjoyed it. Then, when it came time to break up, Bader was nowhere to be found.

"Later some searchers came upon him in a hayloft down the road on his way, he thought, to liberty.

"So they took away one of his legs every night and gave it back in the morning. I suppose he has them both all the time now, since he's probably in a regular prisoner-of-war camp."

Birmingham Steel Mills To Resume Work

30,000 Striking TCI Employes Affected; Troops Withdrawn.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 28.—(AP)—Alabama Home Guardsmen were withdrawn tonight from strike-bound steel mills of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, as union sources said the mills would resume operations at once.

Brigadier General Ben Smith, Guard commander, ordered the withdrawal after a telephone conference between Governor Frank M. Dixon and William Mitch, southern director of the Steel Workers' Organizing Committee (CIO).

The union closed all the company's principal plants last night in protest of the use of the Guard at the Ensley works of the TCI.

Governor Dixon, in a statement at Montgomery, said Mitch and George T. Baker, president of the Ensley SWOC local, had assured him "there would be no mass picketing," no intimidation or coercion at the gate, and until the men went back to work, no increase in the number of pickets stationed at the gate."

The Fleet's in at DAVISON'S

The U. S. NAVY in Miniature

Brought to Atlanta by the Navy! On Exhibit on Davison's 5th Floor Monday Through Saturday, Oct. 4

(Above) Naval Officers inspect the 404 miniature vessels on display at Davison's. Representing $8,000,000,000 worth of ships manned by 100,000 men.

Every man, every woman, every child in Atlanta and Georgia will want to see this exhibit. And should see it to fully appreciate the magnificent scope and strength of Uncle Sam's Navy. This exhibit shows 404 hand-carved scale models of the U. S. fighting fleet. Executed by Mr. Charles Gunther, each warship is hand-carved from birch and pine to exactly reproduce the real ships in our combat force. These 404 vessels represent $8,000,000,000 of fighting strength.

If the actual ships were placed end to end, they would form a line more than 50 miles. The tiny destroyers in the exhibit trace the development of the destroyer through the ten classes in service. This great exhibit is being shown in the key cities of America. We are intensely proud that Davison's has been chosen by the Navy to show it exclusively to the people of Atlanta and Georgia, and that His Honor the Mayor has seen fit to proclaim this Navy Week in Atlanta.

Of Especial Interest in Davison's U. S. Navy Exhibit:

SHORT TALKS by an Officer of the Navy twice each day, at 10:30 A. M. and 3:30 P. M., Fifth Floor.

MOVIE, "THE EYES OF THE NAVY," will be shown on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, 3:30 P. M., 6th Floor Restaurant. The film will be introduced by an officer of the Navy.

PEACHTREE WINDOWS, the entire bank of them, will show the influence of the Navy on fashions.

U. S. Navy To Take Over All Atlantic, Author Believes

By LEE FUHRMAN.

The United States will soon become involved in a shooting war, then our fleet will take over the entire Atlantic—allowing the British fleet to move into the Mediterranean and British troops to take back the whole of Libya.

These predictions were made in an interview yesterday by Carveth Wells, English world-traveler, author and lecturer, as he stopped off in Atlanta at the Winecoff hotel, prior to lecturing tonight before the Executives' Club at Columbus.

Wells, who has just returned from Trinidad, site of what he termed "a magnificent job of turning a jungle into an Army base of the first water," said he based his prediction on action in Libya and conversations in Trinidad with two British generals.

"Africa is of tremendous importance," he said, "and the British are not going to let the Nazis stay there. Africa is also of utmost importance to the United States, although most persons do not seem to realize it.

"Africa is the great diamond producing center, and the United States gets all its diamonds from that continent. The diamonds are used in many defense industries. The gems wear out, too, so you can see that the supply must be kept coming into this country.

"There is also a big supply of bauxite, used in making airplanes, in Africa. The United States also imports much cotton from Egypt, used in the manufacture of tires for Army vehicles.

"As for parachutes, a parachute is no good unless it opens, and what makes it open is a certain oil found on the African west coast. It is sulfonated olive oil and of great importance in these days.

"Africa also has large quantities of chrome and manganese. In addition, it has vast stores of palm oil, a by-product of which is glycerine, the basis of high explosives. So you can see how important Africa is to the American defense effort."

Commenting on Russia, Wells, who has visited many times in the Caususus regions, expressed the view that the Soviets would hold off Germany for a long time, and that major military action in the next few months will be in the Caucusus regions.

"In the first place, the weather in that area is mild in winter. In the second place, Germany hopes to get oil there without having to cross the mountains. So they'll fight hard around this region. But watch General Wavell and his troops! He'll do his best to stop the Nazi drive there.

"Yes, I look for action in the Near East and Africa."

Wells, who said he has visited Atlanta many times before, but has never spoken here, lectured Saturday night in Macon. He praised accomplishments of American engineers and technicians for what has been accomplished at Trinidad.

Nation's Biggest War Maneuvers Come to Close

Attack on Shreveport Balked by General Lear's Troops.

WITH THE SECOND ARMY IN LOUISIANA, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The biggest war games ever staged by the United States Army, giving 400,000 troops of the nation's 1,400,000-man Army a chance to put their military education into practice in the field, was ended today.

The stamina of the men, the effectiveness of the new anti-tank defense and the efficiency of the Army supply system were the high points of the war games, declared Lieutenant General Lesley J. McNair, maneuver director and chief of staff of General Headquarters, in announcing cessation of histilities.

Church bells and factory whistles in the besieged city sounded loudly and soldiers fired their remaining blank shots to celebrate the end of hostilities.

The 110,000 troops of the Second Army were ordered to go into concentration points tomorrow for a few days of cleaning up their equipment and preparing for an immediate return to their posts throughout the United States during the next two weeks.

Most of the 400,000 troops had long awaited the end of the war, asking one-another repeatedly during the last 24 hours, "Is it over yet?"

While the Second Army held the attacking Third Army more than 30 miles away on the south, east and west, a single column of armored troops reached the gates of Shreveport from the north, only to be stymied by an unfordable bayou five blocks from Lieutenant General Ben Lear's headquarters.

Tribute Is Given Miss Miley Here

Tribute to the memory of Marion Miley was paid last night at the banquet in the Athletic Club of the Southern States Four-Ball tournament, which opens today at East Lake, when Colonel Lee S. Read, of Louisville, Ky., introduced members of his team.

Colonel Read called for no applause and five seconds of silence from the 150 persons present as a tribute, he said, to "a gracious golfer and a great Kentucky woman."

City Detective Chief Joe Harrigan said that Mrs. Miley, who regained consciousness after an operation at St. Joseph's hospital, would be questioned if her condition permitted. She muttered before lapsing into unconsciousness that her attackers were "white men," but later said she wasn't sure.

Wore White Masks.

The men, she told Harrigan, wore white masks over their faces. One was tall and wore a light, or grey suit, and the other man was of medium build, wearing dark clothes.

Hugh Cramer, a newsboy, told police he entered the spacious country club grounds about 4 o'clock in the morning, 40 minutes before Mrs. Miley, although shot three times in the abdomen, struggled to the Ben-Mar sanitarium, 200 yards across the Lexington-Paris highway, to give the alarm which started the greatest manhunt in Lexington's history.

A blue, four-door Buick, with one door open, was parked near the front door, Cramer told Chief Harrigan. He didn't notice the license plate. Two coupes belonging to Miss Miley and her mother were parked near-by.

Saw Light in Room.

Raymond Baxter, who tends the golf greens, said he made several trips into the grounds between 1 and 5 o'clock and noticed a light burning for a short time in Miss Miley's bedroom.

Guy Maupin, Lexington police fingerprint expert, rushed prints of the fingerprints, 16 in all, to Washington, D. C., for a check by the FBI.

All employes of the club were questioned, but offered no leads in the slaying. It was established that Miss Miley played cards with friends last night, and entered the club before a party of dancers left about 1:30 o'clock. She said she intended to visit in Cleveland today, and packed her bags before retiring.

Miss Miley, who directed the club, had placed the evening's receipts in a closet in her mother's room before retiring. The attackers ignored other cash, several employes' pay checks, and $60 in the club office on the first floor.

Entrance Method Unknown.

Chief Harrigan was mystified by the intruders' method of entrance. Although a rear, kitchen window was open entrance there was blocked by cooking equipment. He theorized that the men may have hid in the basement earlier in the morning and waited their chance to attack the women after employes left and they were alone.

Another mystery, he said, developed when he found the closet door locked after the money was removed, presumably by Mrs. Miley or Marion, who had the key.

The gunmen, using a .32 caliber automatic, ripped a panel from a thin door at the top of the club's stairs, and entered a hall leading to two rooms the women occupied alone. Club officials frequently insisted that a guard be stationed at the clubhouse, but the women declined to "have a man around."

Fred Miley, the golf star's father, is a golf professional at Cincinnati, but had gone to Hamilton, Ohio, for a golf match. He was reached there and was en route to Lexington tonight.

The bullets fatal to Miss Miley struck her in the back of the neck, and in the chest, ranging downward. All of Mrs. Miley's wounds were confined to the abdomen.

Lexington citizens, shocked by the death of a noted resident, were in a revengeful mood, while city, county and state police pooled their facilities in an effort to nab the gunmen.

Miss Miley was known to golfing fans throughout the country, and she had won an impressive list of championships against top-notch competition.

She won three consecutive women's western golf derby titles in heated battles with Patty Berg, of Minneapolis, another noted woman golfer with whom Miss Miley often clashed.

In the third of the western derby battles, in 1937, Miss Miley established a world's record for women by shooting 72 holes at Chicago's Onwetsia course in a total of 309 strokes.

Miss Miley had also won such big-time tournaments as the Western Open, the Southern Amateur and the Trans-Mississippi.

ATLANTA, GA., SEPT. 29, 1941.

Blatant Sophistry

Representative August H. Andresen, of Minnesota, has introduced in congress a bill which, if enacted into law, would prohibit the sale or shipment of oleomargarine in interstate commerce.

Under the pretense of opposition to the standards for oleomargarine recently announced by Federal Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, the Minnesotan has offered a bill which would be little short of a death blow to the margarine industry.

The bill would prohibit sale of oleomargarine containing milk products. Most margarine makers use skim milk in emulsifying the fatty content. Furthermore the bill prohibits interstate shipments of any margarine yellow in color or which imitates butter in color, flavor or appearance. Which prohibitions are so all-inclusive that almost any palatable spread for bread would be outlawed.

Charles W. Holman, secretary of the National Co-operative Milk Producers' Federation, which is, in practice, the Washington lobby of the midwestern dairy interests, has jumped to indorse and support the Andreson measure.

Mr. Holman opens his campaign with the statement that his organization is working in the interest of "public health and welfare with regard to products made in imitation and semblance of butter and milk." Which statement is purest sophistry when considered in the light of the purpose for which it was issued.

For, despite Mr. Holman's protestations, margarine is a healthful food and is important to the public welfare itself. It is a palatable, healthful and strength-giving spread for bread, sold at a price which places it within reach of many people whose incomes do not permit them to use the high-priced butter.

It is quite probable that most people, freed from economic considerations, would prefer to use butter. However, unable to afford this ofttimes costly luxury, the poor man can make his family dinner table more appealing, more healthful and more nourishing by using good quality, high standard margarine.

There is a place, in American usage, for both butter and margarine. The Andresen bill would selfishly seek a monopoly of the market for butter alone and, in so doing, would work serious hardship upon tens of thousands of poorer homes. For margarine is the poor man's butter and it is little less valuable as an article of diet than the butter Mr. Holman champions so blindly.

Most margarine is made, chiefly, of cotton seed oil, a southern product. Every southerner concerned with the economic well being of his state or section, should write his congressman urging defeat of the Andresen measure, in order to protect and retain a valuable market for a high quality southern product.

"I want to make it clear this will not be a silent campaign," says Mayor and Candidate LaGuardia, thus relieving practically no suspense.

Debunking Vitamins

The revolt against the vitamin fad is on.

Vitamins, it would seem, are great things, necessary and plentiful—in the right places. But going bughouse over vitamins, it also seems, is bughouse.

At that, the vitamin fad has run a course tougher and longer than most health fads that have set the nation agog from time and time, only to fade as fads do.

No less an authority than Dr. Logan Clendening, of Kansas City, and one of the best known clinicians of the country, has launched a debunking program, which the Journal of the American Medical Association prints in a current issue as a "letter to the editor."

The able doctor is not off on a wild tangent. He has the records, and these records speak for themselves. Far less than one per cent of patients admitted to leading Americans clinics suffer a vitamin deficiency. Dr. Clendening makes the point that education in the need for a balanced diet is necessary and desirable, but that the setting up of a bugaboo in connection with vitamins without basis in fact is both silly and criminal.

It was a great fad while it lasted, though.

The more the Nazis grab, the more critical becomes the state of their economy. Hence the provocative question: Is Hitler running up an empire or a bill?

Agents for Germany?

There is startling possibility in the action of government investigators at Washington who have seized, by subpoena, material from the office there of the misnamed "America First Committee."

The seizure was made in connection with the inquiry by the Justice Department into alleged violations of the foreign agents registration act. Under this law all agents of foreign countries in the United States must register with the Justice Department and state clearly the purpose for which they are here and the methods by which they plan to achieve that purpose.

Already one indictment has resulted from the inquiry. That is of an Akron, Ohio, attorney named Frank Burch. He is alleged to be an agent for the German government.

Whether or not the America First Committee, which sponsors the meetings at which Colonel Lindbergh, Senators Wheeler, Nye, Clark and others speak in open opposition to the administration policy for the defeat of Nazism, is directly connected with Berlin is open to question. It is, of course, inconceivable that senators of the United States, such as the three mentioned, would knowingly permit themselves to be used as agents for a government which is the avowed enemy of the United States.

However, Colonel Lindbergh, in his speeches, has several times followed the same argument "line" as used, almost simultaneously, by Goebbels' propaganda machine in Berlin. The parallel, on several occasions, has been so close as to stretch the bounds of credulity if it is to be dismissed as coincidence.

It would go far toward clearing the American atmosphere of an organization whose outpourings most Americans have long resented if the Justice Department could, once and for all, brand the America First Committee as a subversive organization, working for the Nazi outlaws.

After the early furore, little has since been heard of surrealism. Maybe it returned to Europe, where it can hardly be told from the situation.

Quit Kidding Ourselves

The Navy has been challenged and, ranging the far waters of the north Atlantic are ships of the fleet combing a wide area for the submarines that sank the Sessa and the Pink Star.

These are no maneuvers. They are not child's play. They are the brutal fact of war, and war no less because it is on the high seas. There will be shooting and there will be the terrible eruptions of an ocean wracked by the power of depth bombs.

Iceland is an American outpost and ships bound for that outpost are the target of German submarines seeking to cut the supply line to that island. They deliberately are inciting reprisals, which will not be long in coming. Then one may expect that the German government will howl mightily.

To any persons who have listened to recent German short-wave broadcasts aimed at this country, it seems rather ridiculous to listen to the protestations of the speakers who deride those saying that Germany has designs against the United States. They lie, calmly and deliberately, as they lied to France, to Great Britain, to Denmark and Norway, to Holland, to Greece, to all the other countries into which they have set their minions marching.

Well may the people of this country face the fact that the nation is at war—the sooner this is accepted the sooner the war will be won. There is nothing more to be gained by an ostrich-like attitude. Since the country is at war, let it be an all-out war, for the result will be no different if the Allies of the United States fall before the Nazi onslaught.

Let's quit kidding ourselves.

When the pipes filled with rainwater from a leaking roof, an organist at New York's City College halted a recital instead of giving bird imitations.

Georgia Editors Say:

ON REACHING THE AGE OF 76

(From The Newnan Herald)

With, we hope, more vigor in her solid frame than ever before, The Newnan Herald has reached the age of 76 years, and begun her 77th year of service in the interest of Newnan and Coweta county, first, and Georgia and the nation.

Having published that first issue in the perilous times of 1865 when the south faced a future as black as a storm cloud, The Herald today goes out into a world which itself occupies much the same position as did the south in '65.

As did The Herald of those days, the newspaper of today can face that dark future, with hope and courage and the belief that once again the world will right itself. Such a hope can be and is expressed by her editors because today the same staunch belief in the people she serves characterizes her management. The same kind of people whom The Herald sought to help toward security in 1865 read her columns today—there has been little change in that respect in Coweta county. And those people are forthright and brave enough to justify any newspaper's faith in them.

Her people make her what she is—an honest organ of news and thought, open to the truth of any matter at any time and seeking always for a just weighing of the truth in editorial opinion.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

FOREIGN POLICY TEST WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—President Roosevelt is about to send to congress a recommendation for modification or repeal of the neutrality act, thus inviting the most crucial test yet made of the administration's foreign policy.

How far he plans to go in removing the statute from the book of attempted peace objectives no one at the moment is prepared to say. Most any recommendation he makes, however, is expected to draw a focus on the two main provisions of the act, those relating to the arming of American merchantmen and the opening of belligerent foreign ports to United States vessels.

The whole neutrality act was built around these two provisions, plus the cash-and-carry restrictions on the sale and transportation of American goods to other nations at war with each other. The whole concept of peace embodied in the legislation, which was passed before the present European conflict began, was that you could make a people neutral by law.

But as predicted by many of those who opposed enactment of the act, it has not worked. Public emotions cannot be controlled by law, any more than human appetites were restrained by prohibition. From the beginning there has never been any neutrality on the part of the American people in the fight between Hitler and Britain. There was never any in the war between Japan and China. Our sympathies were clearly with the Greeks against the Italians. We were not even neutral in the war waged by Mussolini against Haile Selassie and his band of half-civilized Ethiopians.

LACK OF NEUTRALITY SHOWN Our lack of neutrality in the present war has been demonstrated time and time again through the various steps taken by the administration to aid Great Britain and the victims of Axis aggression. It is reflected in the several national polls on the subject, in the practically one-sided support the President's foreign policy has received in the editorial comment on the country's newspapers, and finally by the support congress itself has given the policy.

Always the isolationists have claimed that a large majority of the American people were back of them, that the American people would have rejected the many moves for British aid, had they been given an opportunity to vote on the proposals. But always when the showdown came in congress they were proved to be wrong. Whatever may be said of congress, it cannot be denied that, slow though it may be at times to keep abreast of public trends, it is more sensitive to the voice of the people than any other national body in the country.

Now the isolationists are claiming that the country is against repeal or modification of the neutrality act. Senator Taft, of Ohio, one of the leaders of the group and a past Republican presidential candidate, has gone so far as to say that repeal of the act would be equivalent to a declaration of war.

If that sort of interpretation is to be made of the President's forthcoming recommendation, then the isolationists are to get the kind of test they have been clamoring for during all these past months—a vote by congress on what they construe as the equivalent of a declaration of war.

SOME REVISION EXPECTED Under those circumstances the test promises to be the most crucial the President's foreign policy has undergone. The full force of isolationist and non-interventionist strength may be expected against the recommendations. The debate may be more prolonged and more spirited than any yet attending consideration of the various war measures congress has acted upon. Advance indications are that some neutrality revision will be voted by an easy margin.

There is every evidence that public sentiment will back the administration in its latest move, which embodies a return to the principle of the freedom of the seas, just as it has in other measures.

As regards the contention being made by Senator Taft that repeal of the act amounts to a declaration of war, this is a far-fetched conclusion, of course. When and if the time comes for the United States to throw the full of its effort on the side of the British and Russians against the Nazis the President will not resort to the subterfuge implied in the Taft statement, but will go before congress with a solemn recommendation for a formal declaration of war.

AMPLE PROVOCATION In the face of our unmistaken unneutrality, the one thing, more than all else perhaps, that has kept the United States out of the war so far has been the attitude of Hitler himself. We have committed enough unneutral acts to give him ample provocation if it was to his interest to have us at war.

But Hitler is apparently, for good cause, determined not to invite any armed clash with this country until and after his hands are freed in Europe. Despite all of the threats to sink our ships which came from Berlin after the President's announced policy of freeing American defensive waters of Axis warcraft nothing of importance has happened. True, one American-owned ship flying the Panamanian flag has been sunk since then along the patrol route to Iceland. But nothing else.

From the outset it was doubted that Hitler would do more than cause a few scattered incidents of the kind. He doubtless remembers the causes leading up to our entry into the first World War in 1917, which were the same. We are far better prepared today than we were then, both in men and equipment, although we still have a long ways to go before perfecting our war machine. It is up to him to say when we enter the war under the present trend of events. There is no reason to believe he wants us in, neutrality act repeal or otherwise.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

In Reply To a Customer.

There has come to my desk a letter from Mrs. W. A. Pound, of Atlanta. Addressed to the "Pulse of the Public" column it is, unfortunately, too long for use there. The gist of the letter is that, while she enjoys, values and always has felt full confidence in The Constitution, she cannot understand why this paper has been compelled to disagree with Governor Talmadge on some of the things he has done since taking the oath of Governor for his present term. She cannot understand why some of his acts have been called "Hitler-like," and she feels that disagreement with a properly elected chief executive of the state government is detrimental to national unity. She even feels we are inconsistent in urging a united nation behind President Roosevelt—also elected by a majority of voters — and opposing Talmadge policies.

I am going to try, this morning, to at least partially answer Mrs. Pound's queries.

We Can Do No Otherwise.

In the first place, we can do no other than oppose and protest actions which violate the most elemental principles of truth and justice. We should know no peace in our own conscience if we did otherwise. Regardless of the outcome, we must, if we would retain self-respect, champion the cause of those who are wrongfully accused, wrongfully condemned and cruelly penalized.

The Governor, for reasons which should be plain even though not admitted, saw fit to accuse a competent and worthy member of the faculty of the University of Georgia of something of which he was innocent.

Much has been publicized of the charge that Dean Cocking of the School of Education at Athens advocated mixture of the races in schools in Georgia. As a matter of fact, the one expression upon which this charge was based was to the effect that he, Dean Cocking, hoped to see the day when the campus of the university should be the entire state, for the benefit of all Georgians regardless of race or place in life. A hope which, surely, every believer in education could most heartily endorse.

This was the basis for the cruel charge brought against Dean Cocking. The Board of Regents, when it looked into the charge, properly vindicated the dean.

Then the Governor, determined to have his way, proceeded to change the personnel of the board, replacing men of highest standing in Georgia, of unimpeachable honesty, with men who, while they may be sincere and honest, nevertheless were appointed because the Governor knew in advance how they would vote.

A second trial for Dean Cocking was farcical in its injustice. The verdict was written in advance by the packed jury and there was no semblance of ordinary fairness.

The same treatment was accorded to President Marvin Pittman of the Statesboro College.

Can men who love justice and honesty remain silent before such outrage as this?

Purging Libraries.

The Governor has been instrumental in banning from school libraries many books. I am not familiar with some of them, but I do know others, now banned, which are among the most valuable social studies of our time. Written, too, by brilliant men who are just as truly southern in views and ideals as anyone.

Competent employes of the state have been fired from their posts for the sole reason they did not agree with the Governor politically.

The Governor is an educated man. He is intelligent and brilliant. He has, in many respects, served the state well. He could, if he wished, be the finest Governor the state has known in many, many years.

Yet he deliberately plays an actor's part, because he believes it will win him votes. He attempts to stir up the racial issue, upon the foundation of false charges brought against good men, because he thinks that, too, will win votes.

There was no racial issue in Georgia until the Governor created it.

As for the "Hitler-like" charge, did not Hitler begin his seizure of power by burning better books than he could ever understand, did he not take control of German education, did he not stir up the ignorant mob by racial persecution of a helpless minority?

Isn't there a tragic similarity in the things that have happened in Georgia of recent months?

Gene Talmadge has opportunity to serve the people of Georgia in magnificent style. But he must, first, choose to so serve the people, instead of seeking to ruthlessly serve unscrupulous political ambitions.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

The opinions expressed by Mr. Pegler in this column are his own and do not necessarily represent the opinion of The Atlanta Constitution.

World Series Social Side NEW YORK, Sept. 28. — It has been six years since I covered a World Series, but my last was my 17th in a row, so I feel qualified to give out on the social background of this peculiar American emotional disturbance whose most exciting phase occurred in the era of wonderful nonsense when hot-eyed preachers put poison in the hootch and nobody went to bed except to die.

The social life of the World Series takes place in the hotels customarily patronized by baseball magnates, scouts, traders and superannuated players and by the baseball writers assigned to the show. This latter group included, in my day, a number of celebrated middle-name fictioneers who would be commissioned by the syndicates to do the story in the manner of the living human document, an assignment on which many a big name laid an overripe egg because, after all, a World Series game never adds up to anything more than a game of ball with bunting and some blurts of unbelievably bad band music.

Time came, in Philadelphia, when a frugal management, stung by disparagement of the strains discoursed elsewhere in other years, dispensed with even this paltry festivity and substituted Sousa on records, magnified by the loud-speakers. That was the year the customers in the bleachers spotted Herbert Hoover as he was leaving and hooted, "We Want Beer," an affront so ominous to men of serious mind that an elderly cop in the cordon holding back the crowd, fell flat on his face and lay as if dead.

New York Always Calm The public celebration in Philadelphia was meager, as it always is in New York, where even the mighty Giants of McGraw in their early meetings with the Yankees occasioned no horn-blowing or hat-banging in the streets. But, although New York always preserved an outward calm, the private relaxing parties after the game in the years of '21 and '22 were historic brawls which took a measurable toll of some of the miscreants.

Prohibition was upon us in earnest then, the bootlegging industry had not been organized and we of the press and our guests and a few hundred assorted by-gone celebrities of the game made merry in such determined fashion that the bill to the management of the two clubs would seem to have been no less than $50,000 each time. The joint "press headquarters" spread all over the Commodore's mezzanine with rare viands and exotic delicacies at the call of a great horde of friends of the baseball management. And from somewhere there appeared not merely bottles or cases but stacks of cases of veritable pre-war stimulants to which we all addressed ourselves in that pathetic and unforgettable greediness of the time when every true American tried to drink his fill in the belief that the chance would never come again.

McGraw the Unpredictable John McGraw had personal quarters in the old Waldorf from which, in the late hours, old friends of the Little Napoleon would come hurtling, bruised and disheveled, like bums out of a barrel house. He was a man of unpredictable moods who had parted the hair of an old friend with a decanter one night in the Lambs' and broken another friend's leg when that one went to placate him, so anyone who made merry with McGraw assumed all the risk.

Cap'n Til Huston, the social partner of the Yankee firm, had personal quarters in the Martinique, but Colonel Jake Ruppert and Ed G. Barrow, the business manager, merely dropped in, saluted their guests and quietly vanished on big business.

In 1923, the social program was greatly reduced and, while economy may have been a reason, I am willing to believe that the hosts had come to the conclusion that their hospitality was getting their guests down. Or perhaps, in that early stage of prohibition, they had an apprehension that someone might walk out a window looking for the second door on the left and bring scandal on the great national game.

In Dry Washington The most hysterical public demonstration of all occurred in Washington in 1924 when Bucky Harris won his first pennant for Clark Griffith. This one was hard to account for except on the grounds of innocent enthusiasm, for Washington, where congress dwelt under the baleful eye of the Methodist Vatican, was extra dry and hardly anyone really lives there to the extent of a rooting interest in the town.

Nevertheless, the frenzies rivaled those of either armistice and thousands of citizens made fools of themselves far beyond midnight on nothing stronger than coffee. Mr. Griffith abhorred intoxicants from honest convictions and provided no bar, but each working press ticket was accompanied by a series of coupons, one for each day, which, presented at a certain hotel, somehow entitled bearer to one imperial quart. It had become a binding tradition now to ossify the press and sundry and this pretty custom continued on down to repeal when temptation, or, anyway, opportunity, appeared on every hand, at popular prices.

To be sure, we also had ball games, but I am dealing with a side of the great national gala which was far more exciting and on which I now believe the statute of limitations may reasonably be said to have run. Much as our public envied us our seats in the working press, still more would the people of the U. S. A. have pined to join us when we threw off the cares of high office to make fellowship.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH McGILL.

TWO MESSAGES The most recent reporter to come out of Germany was Joseph C. Harsch. One of the most able of American reporters, he is on the staff of the Christian Science Monitor.

He was one of those on the tour of defense plants in the east and middle west. He and Leland Stowe, the newspaperman who made journalistic history in Norway, both were completing books at the time of that tour.

Stowe's book, "There Is No Other Road to Freedom," already has been discussed here. It is recommended for those who are interested in the war as the very best book on the Finnish, Norwegian and Greek campaigns. Its answer to the isolationists is unanswerable.

Harsch's book, which I have just completed, is a must for those who would understand Germany. It explains why this is not just a European war but a plan of conquest in which the most insignificant detail has been planned. He was in Berlin during the war and the first English bombings of Berlin. The book is "Pattern of Conquest." If war studies interest you, you will like this one from inside Germany.

This is by way of introduction to a column by Harsch, in a recent edition of the Monitor, from the maneuvers of our own Army in Louisiana. It is an able and convincing answer to the critics of our Army by a man who has seen the best army in Europe and now sees our own. It is as follows:

CLEAN, DECENT BOYS "You can't stay very long with this bunch of plain, decent, ordinary American boys in the Army here without wanting to go to bat for them when they are being abused or unfairly treated.

"They are a decent bunch of boys. Which is rank understatement. They have their faults, their pranks, their grouches. But to spend days going around among them and just looking at their faces, listening to their conversation and watching their behavior makes you feel good all over—and tremendously reassured.

"Physically they are a fine looking bunch. My mind goes back to all the Nazi statements about American degeneracy I heard in Berlin when I was covering the war in Germany. If we are a degenerate people in any respect—physical, moral or intellectual—you can't find any evidence of it here.

"These boys are a finer looking physical type than the German army by far. They have more zest than the German soldier. They have unbounded confidence in themselves. They have an extraordinary appreciation of what this world situation is all about. They don't like being soldiers. But just because they don't like it—which is as it should be for Americans—they make better soldiers than the German, I am sure. And just about every one of them takes this for granted.

"There may be some political defeatists in Washington. But there aren't any soldier defeatists here.

"All of which adds up to making one intensely annoyed and fairly angry when you find someone taking advantage of them or abusing them unfairly—particularly when the unfairness comes from other Americans who aren't going through the swamps and dirt and insects and discomfort in every form which these boys are taking.

"Which leads up to three grounches I have right now.

FIRST "In Army maneuvers under simulated war conditions, Army convoys must observe blackouts. Long columns of Army vehicles must move on the roads at night with dark, blue headlights which just barely advertise themselves, but give the driver almost no lights on the road. This means that drivers of 13-ton trucks, 30-ton tanks, motorcycles, and everything else in this Army must work in the dark. Then along comes a passenger car often going double the speed limit for the maneuver area, with full headlights, cutting in and out of convoys, blinding drivers who often have had no sleep for 24 hours or more. The majority of accidents, many of them fatal, which have occurred during these maneuvers are the result of this callous, cruel refusal of some civilians to share for just a few miles on the highway the conditions imposed on the Army. It seems a small sacrifice of civilian convenience to ask. The Army can't ask it. It has to take its losses silently. Someone else should demand it.

SECOND "A soldier gets $21 a month. Often he likes, and sometimes he needs, to buy food out of his own pocket in restaurants. There are hundreds of restaurants in this maneuver area which have doubled and sometimes tripled their prices for the Army's benefit. If the boys during the last war had a legitimate complaint against French profiteering, they have an equally justified complaint against American profiteering at their expense right now. Fortunately there is another side to his story here. The country people and the non-merchant townsmen have treated the boys extremely well. They are invited in to meals and entertained everywhere they go. Some outfits say the people are more cordial and friendly here than any place else they have been in the United States.

THIRD "One of the biggest and most influential American newspapers has a correspondent here who is under instructions from his publisher to look for things that may be used to smear the Army. The newspaper has a policy of wanting to keep this country out of war and uses this means of doing it. The theory is that if the American people can be made to believe that the Army is incompetent and useless, it will insist on keeping that Army at home. Whatever the merits in the motive—which is another matter—the result is a gross unfairness to the entire Army from its top officers to its lowest private. And it hurts them deeply. It's pretty hard to go through what these boys are and then read in the papers that they are a bunch of stupid, useless, ignorant, untrained, incompetent bums. It takes the heart out of them as much as anything could. Such an attitude is yeoman service to Hitler.

"And this same newspaper argues that America is impregnable. Which way do they want to have it? If the Army is useless and incompetent just how impregnable can American defenses be? The only fair thing to these boys is to argue the issue of intervention on its merits and report this Army on its merits."

If the Steam Pressure Keeps Increasing, It Must Somehow Find Release

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

The bravest in all Gaul, according to Caesar, were the Belgians. But the toughest fighters north of Rome—"the most warlike and the most barbaric"—were the wild Germanic tribes.

Nobody knows where they came from. They first appeared on the shores of the Baltic, but had drifted into central Europe when Rome found them and introduced them to history. Their blood is in other races, scattered from Lombardy to Sweden, but the true Germanic stock took root and developed where Rome first found it.

Now the tribes have become a nation of eighty million, and the world must reckon with it forever.

The Germans are not superior to other races, but they have many of the qualities that make a people great. Through all the centuries they have remained warlike, delighting in the pomp and power of martial adventure. They are good soldiers, brave, dogged and disciplined.

As a people, they are prolific, physically sturdy and intelligent. They have little of the flashing brilliance and cold logic of the Latin genius, but in the combination of manual skill, untiring patience, thoroughness, attention to detail, industry and ability to organize and co-operate, they have no equal on earth. Much of their fame in science and the arts was won by German Jews, but the Germans themselves have contributed much to every branch of learning and to every work of civilization.

To keep such a people permanently in subjection is an impossibility—as the French learned too late.

What, then, can the world hope for when the present war is over—assuming that Germany is again defeated? What terms of peace will insure the safety of Europe and the world?

Divide Germany into many helpless little states? They will inevitably unite and lust for vengeance.

Scatter or exterminate them? The world is too decent to consider such a solution.

The Germans could live forever within their old boundaries, safe from attack, prosperous and respected, as they were in Wilhelm's time, before the first World War.

But they will not. A prolific, industrious, race-proud and ambitious people will expand if it can—and there are no more primitive lands to conquer.

Apparently the world must fight for its freedom in every generation or submit to German domination. For the Germanic tribes will keep on multiplying, and their nature will not change.

The Pulse of the Public

The Constitution invites expression of opinion by its readers. This column is open for that purpose. All communications must be signed and all are subject to editing for conservation of space. Brevity makes argument effective and impels attention.

SAYS WAR CAN NEVER BE CALLED "CHRISTIAN"

Editor, Constitution: An editorial, entitled "Onward Christian Soldiers," in the September 24 issue of your paper, interested me very much. In this editorial you set forth the view that the present war is, in effect, a war between God and Satan. The editorial stated in emotionally picturesque language that "this is a Christian war." You pointed out that not all the men who are at the present time fighting on God's side are of the highest moral character, yet in your thought they are still helping God and Christianity.

It is of no small consequence that we find the editor of an outstanding newspaper taking such a position as this, especially in view of the prolonged and exhaustive criticism of similar editorial ventures that flourished during the last war. It has long been an accepted fact with the leading thinkers of the Christian church that no war is ever Christian. Even at the present time, those leaders of the church who favor America's entrance into the war do not stoop to attach the label of "Christian" to such a ghastly, ungodly, inhuman carnage as war.

It is conceded by most leading sociologists and economists that this present war is in large part due to the failure of the Allies at the close of the last war to make adjustments that were possible for the defeated peoples to adhere to. Could, then, a war which is caused indirectly by such as that be called Christian?

These and other considerations prompt the thoughtful Christian to state his objections to any assertion that this war is Christian, for such an assertion as that is profoundly offensive to the truly Christian conscience.

"RED-LIGHT" ARGUMENT HELD TO BE AMUSING.

Editor, Constitution: We humbler citizens who are on speaking or fraternal terms with workers whose daily occupations take them into all parts of Atlanta, and into dwellings not visited by the elite, have been greatly amused of late by the controversy about the red-light districts.

"They must not come back!" has been shouted from the housetops.

The above remark leads many of us to inquire, "bring them back from where?"

Mercury Drops as Cold Weather Turns Eastward

By the Associated Press.

Cold weather that has held the northwest in subfreezing temperatures spread eastward yesterday, dropping temperatures in Illinois, Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma.

Kansas City's thermometer got up to only 44 at noon and temperatures generally were in the fifties in Oklahoma and Missouri. Miles City, Mont., registered a low of 30.

Temperatures were in the high sixties over the Carolinas, Alabama, and Georgia, but cooler weather was predicted for that area in the next day or two.

Corporal Milazzo, Evidently Irish, Types a Song.

From Fort Benning comes a bit of verse, from Corporal Charles J. Milazzo, entitled "Life Is What You Make It In the Army." He says it's the 22nd Infantry's marching song, and why shouldn't it be? I've heard worse—much worse.

Anyway, I'm printing it—but I don't hope it doesn't inspire a flood of marching songs. It's hard to get the rhythm without a band or at least a drum corps—and I haven't even a piccolo in the office. It starts with the chorus:

Ft. Benning, Ga.
Life is what you make it in the army
From Private up to General.
Before you know what's what—
You'll learn an awful lot—
That isn't in the Man-ual! OH!

Life is what you make it in the army
It's easy if you string along.
But if you start to gripe—
You'll never earn a stripe—
And everyone but you is wrong!

You've got to do your work—
You can't afford to shirk—
Democracy depends on you.
The freedom we're allowed—
Is threatened by a cloud—
Of hate for the RED, WHITE and BLUE! OH!

And though you only earn a buck a day.
Just thank your lucky star—
That you can say you are—
A SOLDIER OF THE U. S. A.

Grand Old-Timer.

Grand old story has been revived for the screen. "The Corsican Brothers." If they can't get good new ones they dig out the old ones.

I never read "The Corsican Brothers," possibly because I couldn't borrow it from anybody. But I know some of it, because I saw the last two acts of it on the stage three times in a row. I never did see the preceding acts.

That was in Austin, Texas, where, as a small boy, I was visiting an aunt. It was along in the fall, and warm. The theater in Austin opened its street exits between acts, so patrons could emerge for a breath of fresh air. It was easy for a small boy to join the throng returning when the warning bell rang. But there wasn't a chance to crash the gate until the first intermission.

I remember the young actor who had the lead in "The Corsican Brothers." Robert Mantell. Probably it was a No. 3 company, barnstorming its way through the wild and woolly west. He became quite a famous Shakesperian actor after that—and played Atlanta many times with a succession of beautiful wives as leading ladies. One of them was Genevieve Hamper. I can't remember the others, any more than I could list the wives of Nat C. Goodwin. He traded them in for a new model every year or two. Oh, of course, I can remember one. Who could forget Maxine Elliott?

Young Robert Mantell probably had dreams of Broadway. But as I remember he never got there. Not for lack of ability. But one of his earlier wives sued him for alimony and got a judgment—which could be collected only by catching Mr. Mantell within the borders of New York state. For some thirty years, the story went, Mantell avoided that commonwealth. If he played in Boston he got there through Canada. It wasn't that he was so tight—but he considered it a matter of principle. And after he had become famous enough to play Broadway that back alimony had grown to figures which would have made Rockefeller take a detour.

One Little Egg.

Dropped a mucilage brush—full of stick-um—on my typewriter.

Never knew a drop of mucilage to go as far or be so tenacious.

There are some things of which you can say: A little goes a long way.

Which brings back a memory of other newspaper days when Fuzzy Woodruff and O. B. Keeler, twin geniuses, ran the city editor—which was me—almost as crazy as they were. I could take either of them—but two were three too many. They thought of too many freak things to do—and did them.

At that period Mr. Keeler hadn't discovered Bobby Jones—who hadn't discovered himself. So Keeler played golf on his own. And brought his clubs to the office. He was demonstrating a new driver—in the crowded local room. He was skill personified.

Fuzzy procured an egg. A fresh and unboiled egg. He placed it on the floor, as a tee, balanced—with a bit of chewing gum—a golf ball on top of it, and bet Keeler a quarter he couldn't take a full swing and hit the ball without cracking the egg.

O. B. never turned down a bet. He took a full swing. But maybe his stance was wrong. He took too much turf—from the floor—and got the hen fruit.

If a restaurant owner could spread an egg that far he could retire in six months. There was egg on the ceiling and on four walls. There was egg on my fresh shirt and those of the staff. There was white dripping from the chandalier and yolk spread over the copy desk. And what was left adorned the countenance of Fred L. Seeley, then owner of that newspaper, who had just come up the stairs—behind Mr. Keeler.

All joined in explaining it was a scientific experiment we wanted to fix up a story about. But Mr. Seeley said he didn't think it was much of an idea. So we dropped it.

Veterans Indorse U.S. Foreign Policy

Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States are wholeheartedly behind the Roosevelt administration in its foreign policy, Charles Vocalis, commander of Post No. 390, V. F. W., reported to his organization on his return from the national encampment held recently in Philadelphia.

Commander Vocalis, a delegate to the national meeting, told his post that a resolution adopted at Philadelphia pledged the support of America's largest overseas veteran organization to the government in its stand against the totalitarian states.

"Appeasers, isolationists and obstructionists will find little comfort in this stand," said Vocalis, adding, "We are committed to defend the American way of life against any and all aggressors."

Nye To Fight For Extension Of Film Probe

Investigation Has Shown Propaganda Exists, Solon Asserst.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—(AP) Senator Nye, Republican, North Dakota, declared today that the current senate investigation of the movie industry "has very clearly revealed the existence of propaganda in the motion picture industry."

Nye, sponsor of a resolution authorizing an investigation of the movies, said that "the propaganda is being carried on with the knowledge and consent of the motion picture producers."

The present investigation is being conducted by a senate interstate commerce subcommittee, which technically is holding hearings to decide whether an inquiry should be held. A full-fledged investigation would require approval by the senate, and the chamber would have to vote funds for its prosecution.

Nye, asserting he was ready to make a senate fight to have the investigation authorized officially, told reporters that the preliminary movie inquiry had established "that the industry has exerted pressure to try to control the channels of information, and it has even gone to the extent of seeking to drive newspapers into dropping unfavorable columns. To the credit of the newspapers, they have not been browbeaten.

Good Morning

By LOUIE D. NEWTON.

BISHOP CANDLER.

"For I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, shall give me at that day, and not to me only, but unto all them also that love His appearing." (II Timothy 4:6-8.)

All day last Thursday these words, spoken by the Apostle Paul, came to my mind with renewed meaning. Bishop Warren A. Candler died at 7:20 o'clock that morning, and, of course, his passing was uppermost in my mind, just as it was uppermost in the minds of countless friends throughout the south. And what the Apostle Paul said about his own life and his own translation seemed peculiarly fitting of the life and translation of my dear friend.

That afternoon I went to Oxford for the funeral of another saint of God, Mrs. J. A. Williamson, and after the burial in the historic Oxford cemetery, I looked at the graves of Bishop Andrew and Bishop Haygood and President Few and other notable leaders of Methodism, and remembered how often I had heard Bishop Candler say: "I want them to put my tired old body in the cemetery at Oxford, that it may there await the morning of the Ressurection, along with Andrew and Haygood and Few. I want them to have my funeral in the old chapel. Let that be done, please."

And that is what they did do. That very afternoon I saw them putting extra chairs in the old chapel, sometimes called the old church at Oxford. I heard a lady at the Williamson funeral remark: "Isn't it just like Bishop Candler to have asked that they bury him here in Oxford."

Accompanied by Rev. A. B. Couch, I drove back by way of Salem campground. We walked about the quiet place, and I related to Mr. Couch how Bishop Candler had preached under that arbor for 50 years. We went to the Candler well and drank water at the very spot where he had often stood. I felt as if we were walking on sacred ground. We went to Kitty's Cottage, where Mr. McCord has created an invaluable museum of Methodism. We looked at the portraits of Andrew, Haygood, Candler, Dickey, and others. We read again the article by Bishop Candler, framed and hanging on the wall.

That afternoon, and ever since, the words of the Apostle Paul have been ringing in my heart: "For I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. . . ." God be thanked for Bishop Candler, and may his blessed spirit sanctify in our memories the boundless reach of the good and great man's life, enabling us to think and speak and live as he thought and spoke and lived, through riches of grace in Christ Jesus our Lord, and to the glory and power and dominion of God. Amen and amen!

Nova Banks on Will-to-Win, Ruggedness To Beat Louis Tonight

All in The Game

BY JACK TROY

Stirring Comeback

NEW YORK, N. Y., Sept. 28.—Lou Nova has come back a long way since his fight with Tony Galento. In fact, one might truthfully say he has come back from dangerously close to the valley of the shadow itself.

There was some question, after he had taken such a terrible beating from Two Ton Tony, if he'd ever fight again. Nova was a sick man. He lost more than 50 pounds.

He has staged a remarkable physical comeback. Today he is a bull of a man. Intellectually he's smart. He talks blithely of a "cosmic" punch, but he probably harps on it mainly for psychological reasons. It still takes more than conversation to get Joe Louis off his feet, however.

Nova may be the man to do it. This will be Louis' 19th title defense. He has been the busiest heavyweight champion of all time. He has met good, bad and indifferent challengers. But probably he has never met one quite like Nova.

The California collegian with the "cosmic" punch is likely the most durable challenger of them all. He may prove the toughest puncher.

And if he's not talking just for publication, he's going to turn it into the liveliest heavyweight title go since Louis Angel Firpo knocked Jack Dempsey into the sportswriters' laps.

For Nova insists there will be a lot of knockdowns on both sides—and the last man to rise will win. No one has dared to talk of trading punches with Louis in such a manner heretofore.

But Nova absorbed Maxie Baer's best wallops and picked his spot to put the Hollywood playboy away. Baer was beyond his peak but he could still punch.

Same Old Talk

The talk that has been current and recurrent and for the last year continues. Joe Louis is losing his zest for fighting. He has slipped past his peak, etc.

There's a theory that because he is due to go into the Army he is resigned to giving up his title. There also is talk that his matrimonial affairs are still somewhat tangled.

Probably the truth of the matter is, however, that Louis would prefer to retire undefeated. He has been a great credit to his race and it would be fitting if he, as a great fighting man, should retire as a champion.

This seems more logical than to think he has lost interest in the championship. And he couldn't have slipped too much. When he had to put Billy Conn away, he did.

Louis can still punch. He has learned a lot about pacing himself and picking his spots. He has had more rest between fights than he usually does. So he ought to be at a keen pitch.

Conn was a fast, elusive target. He made the mistake of not staying away when he had a wide lead in points late in the 15-round fight.

Nova is not the shifty boxer Conn is but he is a much harder puncher. But whether the one will offset the other only Monday night's fight at the Polo Grounds will determine.

Timing's the Thing

While Nova identifies his punch with Yogi mysticism, the explanation of the blow itself seems perfectly logical. He declares Louis has the same sort of wallop.

"Louis was lucky. He had it from the beginning. I mean the ability to deliver a blow at the precise moment when he was a perfect balance and when every muscle was perfectly co-ordinated. That's what made him the greatest champion the ring has ever known.

"But not many fighters have it, and I was one. I've had to work it out for myself according to an exact mathematical formula. In my last fight with Max Baer I had to wait until he tired and slowed down a little before I could use it effectively, but now it's automatic.

"It's added a great deal of power to my blows. Why, the other day when I hit one of my sparring partners on the arm with it, with the big gloves, he complained I'd broken it.

"No matter how tired I get, I've got myself trained to go on hitting with perfect balance, putting every ounce of force behind my shots. Perhaps Louis doesn't have that faculty when he's tired," Nova declared.

Few people have the faculty to do their best when tired and maybe Nova is just talking. At any rate, he doesn't insist Louis is a "bum" or that he is going to knock the champion's head off.

This erudite collegian, with the look of a hairy north woodsman, may have something, at that.

But until the champion's beaten, he's not a bad choice to string along with.

Joe Favored By 13 to 5 in 19th Defense

Crowd of 60,000 Expected To See Lou Make Bid for Title.

By SID FEDER.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Joe Louis puts his world heavyweight championship on the line for the nineteenth and possibly last time tomorrow night in the Polo Grounds.

Before a huge crowd, which Promoter Mike Jacobs expects will reach the 60,000 mark, the Brown Bomber who came out of the Alabama cotton fields to a spot among the all-time greats of the ring, meets in the ex-collegian, Lou Nova, by far the most determined and physically strongest challenger he has faced since the night he rolled to the throne over gallant Jim Braddock back in 1937.

The bout has caught the fancy of the faithful so famously that the gate probably will mark a return of the good old days of the fight game. Jacobs estimates $600,000 will be in the house, which would put this tussle eleventh on the all-time list headed by the $2,658,660 Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney drew in their second fight.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP) The Joe Louis-Lou Nova heavyweight championship fight, scheduled to take place outdoors in the Polo Grounds, New York, will be given in blow-by-blow details on the Mutual Broadcasting System network at 10 o'clock (E.S.T.) Monday night. Don Dunphy and Bill Corum will be at the microphone.

GREATEST RECORD.

Louis and Nova wheel out their artillery and start shooting at 10 p. m. (E.S.T.) and the consensus is that the cease-fire order will have sounded long before the 15-round derby route is run. Louis is 13 to 5 in the betting to finish on top and go into the Army next month still the head man, boasting the greatest record as defender of the crown any champion has ever written into the books. All the champions combined, before Louis, were only able to put up a total of 23 successful defenses. He has 18 of his own right now.

Despite Joe's poor showing against Billy Conn in his last start—last June—as well as the fact he no longer is the killer who hit 'em and wrecked 'em in his prime, the gambling men believe Nova's giant strength and conviction of victory aren't enough to end the record reign as king of the ring.

Joe has improved since his last fight. Then he was worried over a marital mixup with his wife Marva. He was a tired campaigner from seven previous months of training, during which he took on all comers, about once every 30 days, in his now disbanded "bum-of-the-month" club. And in Conn he was facing the fastest fighting machine in the business today.

He has had a three-month vacation, during which he had a kiss-and-make-up scene with Marva and forgot about fighting completely. He is a freshened-up race horse for this fight, and, realizing he may never come back to the ring, is prepared to climax his long ambition to retire undefeated as heavyweight champion of the world.

Nova, on the other hand, has spent three months toughening up, first chopping trees in the Maine woods and more recently in strict drilling at his New Jersey training base. The solid Californian is at his peak physically and is no end convinced that this, with a little of his Yogi, cosmic punch and dynamic stance tossed in, is enough to finally culminate his six-year dream of winning the title.

NOVA AWKWARD.

Against his chances, in addition to the fact that he is only tangling with probably the greatest puncher the business has ever seen, Nova is not too clever as a boxer. He has been accused of being the proud possessor of two left feet, and at times is caught almost ridiculously off balance in ticklish spots in the ring. You can't do that often with Louis without having the roof fall in.

Yet, all through his record, the Californian has overcome these faults with the stubborn confidence that he is a man of destiny with his fists. He came up the hard way. For three years he was coming along fine. In 1939 he stopped Max Baer. Then Tony Galento and a blood-stream illness caught him at the same time and for a year he was in the hospital. Now, at 26 he has fought back until he not only feels he is ready, but actually has a good deal of contempt for Louis' ability and chance of winning.

He will weigh between 202 and 203 at the State Athletic Commission's weigh-in at Madison Square Garden tomorrow. Louis, now 27, expects to scale 202 for the fight which will top off his ring record of 46 knockouts and seven decision victories in his 54 professional outings since he turned in his amateur card back in 1934.

New York, looking ahead to a week which included the World Series as well as the old-fashioned kind of a ballyhooed heavyweight brawl, was jam-packed today. Broadway was a continuous parade, day and night. Hotels were selling any space big enough to hold a bed. Restaurants and bars, theaters and night clubs, all had the S. R. O. signs hung out.

Close-up ring-side tickets for the fight were as easy to get as seven-dollar bills, and some speculators were asking $60 for pasteboards marked $30 for seats in the first 10 rows.

Duke's Battle With Vols Top Game in South

Wake Forest To Clash With Furman in Loop Contest.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 28.—(AP) The Southern Conference football championship race, which already has seen one upset in the ousting of North Carolina, will have a secondary place on the loop's grid program Saturday to Duke's annual clash with Tennessee.

A crowd of some 50,000 is expected to be on hand at Durham, N. C., to watch the Blue Devils celebrate home-coming day in an attempt to avenge a 13-0 licking received from the Vols at Knoxville last year.

The series, which began between the two schools in 1931, has produced some of Dixie's most spectacular football games. The Vols have won five of eight games played, with one ending in a tie, making Tennessee the only club consistently to hold the upper hand on a Wallace Wade-coached Duke squad.

Only three games Saturday will affect the league standings. North Carolina's Tar Heels, one of the favorites in the preseason forecasting but victims yesterday of a 13-7 defeat by South Carolina's promising team, plays at Davidson. The Tar Heels beat the Wildcats, 27-7, last year.

Wake Forest, blasted from the loop race by Duke, 43-14, plays the tough Furman outfit a night game, and Clemson's defending champions engage North Carolina State at Charlotte. Clemson's potent squad rolled over V. M. I. at Lynchburg, 36-7, and will hold the favored role over a N. C. State team which was tied unexpectedly by Davidson, 6-6.

Two other Southern-Southeastern scraps are carded, Kentucky playing at Washington and Lee, and South Carolina at Georgia. The Southeastern has taken two from the Southern so far, Kentucky crushing Virginia Tech, 37-14, and Tennessee beating Furman, 32-6.

Intersectional engagements will send the Citadel's Light Brigade to Army, V. M. I. to Temple, George Washington to Manhattan, and Georgetown to Virginia Tech.

Maryland's Terps, who beat Hampden-Sydney, 18-0, Saturday, meet Western Maryland in Baltimore Friday night. William and Mary can lick its 34-0 Navy game bruises in a breather with Randolph-Macon. Richmond has an open date.

Berg, Dettweiler Burst Into Tears

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Two of Marion Miley's closest golfing friends, Patty Berg and Helen Dettweiler, broke into tears today when informed the young Kentucky star was shot and killed by a robber.

Here for an exhibition match this afternoon, the top-ranking professionals were so shocked they asked to delay the contest until they pulled themselves together.

"I was never so shocked in my life," Helen said.

"Is it really true?" asked Patty. "I just can't believe it."

Sinkwich-Stasica Duel Looms at Sanford Field

Gamecocks' Victory Over Tarheels Turns Saturday Night's Game at Athens Into Big Feature.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

What was figured to be just another game has suddenly developed into one of the real early-season features, the clash next Saturday night between South Carolina and Georgia at Athens.

Probably the two best running backs in the South will oppose each other on the historic turf of Sanford field in the contest which was "made" by Caroline's win over North Carolina and Georgia's rout of Mercer last Saturday. Stan Stasica is the lad who defeated the Tarheels with one brilliant 66-yard attack in the final period and he will be opposed by none other than Frank Sinkwich, the Bulldog Bullet, who spelled woe and disaster to the Gamecocks last season.

Rex Enright, an old Georgia mentor, coaches South Carolina and Wallace Butts is boss of the Bulldogs. And of the two, Butts definitely has the harder job.

He must guard against overconfidence among his players who routed Mercer, 81 to 0. He must see to it his boys don't look ahead to the Mississippi game next week and that's a tough assignment, as the boys really want to win that one.

On the other hand, Enright's team probably has gained the confidence it needs to make it a fine club. And it will be ready to shoot the works in an effort to avenge last year's 33-2 defeat at the hands of Sinkwich and company.

But there definitely is a lot of interest in the game, interest that wasn't there until the Gamecocks outgamed the Tarheels and demonstrated they may be able to give the Bulldogs a going over.

There is really little to say about the Georgia rout of Mercer. Coach Butts definitely didn't want the score that big. It didn't help him any more than it did Bobby Hooks, who was making his debut as a college coach.

But for the sake of posterity, here is what Sinkwich did during his 15-minute stay in the game:

FIRST QUARTER: Slipped for no gain on first play from scrimmage. . . . Ran for 9 yards and then 11. . . . Passed to Lamar Davis for 14 yards. . .. Ran for 6 more and then scored on a 14-yard jaunt. . . . Passed incomplete and then connected one to Van Davis for 11 yards. . . . Passed incomplete and then hit Duck Conger for 14 yards. . . . Gained a yard and then passed to George Poschener for 9 yards and a touchdown. . . . Left the game with about four minutes left to play.

THIRD QUARTER: Ran for 3 yards and then 46 and a touchdown. . . . Gained 13 on a cutback and passed incomplete . . . punted 38 yards over the Mercer goal line. . . . Bucked 2 yards for touchdown after Davis' 58-yard punt return. . . . Left the game after five minutes of this period.

Tribute Is Paid To Howard Jones

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 28.—(AP) Forty-five thousand football fans stood with bared and bowed heads Saturday in a minute's silent tribute to the late head man of University of Southern California fame—Howard Harding Jones.

President Rufus B. Von Kleinsmid read a moving tribute to the memory of the late Trojan coach, who died last July. The ceremony was observed between halves of the Oregon State-U. S. C. game.

The rooting section displayed a card-designed picture of the headman. It first showed his head with its natural brown hair. Then the display turned it to gray—then the whole picture dissolved completely as in a motion picture fadeout.

Wycoff To Wrestle Strongberg

Lee Wycoff, Midwestern Association heavyweight wrestling champion and a thorn in the side of all world title claimants, will display his unquestioned skill again Wednesday night at Northside Tennis club.

Wycoff, who is ready to put up $5,000 that he can toss any wrestler in the world, with his winnings going to some worthy challenger, will meet Rudy Strongberg, ponderous German, in the feature match.

Last week Wycoff defeated the formidable Dorv Roche and appeared capable of ending the match whenever he liked. Lee has beaten nine world's champions, including Strangler Lewis, Jim Browning, Joe Stecher and Sandor Szabo, the present National Wrestling Association champion, whom he downed last year.

Ed (Strangler) White faces Johnny Arneich, of Cherokee, N. C., a young Indian star, in the semi-final.

Hard Rock Stevens and Chief Saunooke, 300-pound Indian chief, open the card.

Ted Williams Boosts Final Mark to .405; Chipman Wins Debut

Red Sox Star Gets Six Hits In Eight Trips

Ted Is First Batter To Top Coveted Mark Since 1923.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28.—(AP) Ted Williams, of the Boston Red Sox, today became the first American leaguer to hit .400 for a season since 1923, when Harry Heilman batted .403 for Detroit. Bill Terry was the last National League player to turn the trick, batting .401 for the Giants in 1930.

Making six hits in eight times at bat while the Red Sox and Athletics split a double-header, Williams finished with a mark of .4057. He started the twin bill with an average of .39955. He played in 143 games during the season, getting 185 hits in 456 times at bat.

Boston won the first game, 12 to 11, and the second was called on account of darkness after eight innings with the A's on top, 7 to 1.

Williams made his thirty-seventh home run and three singles in five chances in the opener, and a double and single in three attempts in the second encounter.

During the summer he batted in 120 runs, scored 135, and walked 151 times. He struck out 26 times. He is the sixth American leaguer to bat .400. Lajoie, Cobb, Sisler, Jackson and Heilman were the others.

RED SOX 12-1; ATHLETICS 11-7.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Sid Hudson blanked the Yankees with four hits to gain his 13th victory in the final game of the season today as the Washington Senators scored all their runs off Charley Stanceu to defeat the American League champs, 5 to 0.

A trapped ball by Tommy Henrich on Cramer's fly helped the Yankees tie Cincinnati's major league record of 194 double plays, which the Reds set in 1928 and tied in 1931. With Hudson on second and Case on first, Cramer flied to Henrich, who dropped the ball, then threw to Rizzuto, who tagged both base runners.

Wave on Way To Bowl Bid After BC Win

Tulane Shows Everything in 21-7 Victory Over Big Eagles.

By PRICE HOWARD.
Associated Press Correspondent.

Tulane's Green Wave is off to an early start toward a bowl bid. The Greenies, vicious on both offense and defense, now claim an air attack, much to the surprise of many, leading their followers to lift already high hopes for success that heads to some post-season classic.

The Wave displayed its first real passing game in several years in thumping Boston College's Sugar Bowl Champions, 21-7, to become the first Southeastern Conference eleven to survive an acid test. Coach Red Dawson's crew gave the easterners a decisive lashing, out-rushing the Eagles, 144 yards to 35, and outpassing them, 153 to 59.

Tulane made connections on 10 of its 20 passes. The Wave left little to be desired on defense, checking the highly-rated Boston backs consistently and watching Eagle passes like a hawk. The Greenies intercepted three of Boston's seven aerial attempts.

GATORS BEATEN.

Otherwise around the loop, Mississippi State trimmed Florida in the season's first conference clash, 6-0; the Georgia Bulldogs put on an impressive showing by crushing Mercer, 81-0, and Alabama's S. E. C. favorites experienced no trouble in hurdling Southwestern Louisiana Institute, 47-6. Vanderbilt surprised many by beating Purdue, 3-0.

Georgia's darkhorse threat, led by Frankie Sinkwich, Lamar Davis, Heyward Allen and George Poschner, did virtually everything right, even down through the second and third stringers. The Bullodgs rolled up 531 yards on ground and in the air. Mercer was 25 yards short of netting anything.

Alabama's fast backs came through as expected in their first warmup, indicating they'll give Tulane, Tennessee, Georgia, Kentucky, Vanderbilt, Georgia Tech and other opponents plenty of trouble.

Jack Jenkins' 20-yard field goal beat Purdue in a punting duel. It, along with Tulane's victory, served to offset some of the sting from intersectional losses by Louisiana State and Mississippi. The L. S. U. Tigers dropped a 19-13 decision to Holy Cross and Mississippi bowed to Georgetown, 16-6.

WILDCATS SURPRISE.

Kentucky's Wildcats, led by little Ermal Allen, came up with a little more than many followers expected in walloping Virginia Tech, 37-14. Auburn warmed up for this week's engagement with Tulane by beating Howard College, 13-0. The other conference battle this week will throw Mississippi State against Alabama. Mississippi State gave promise of a great defensive battle with a fine showing by its linemen against Florida. The Staters beat the 'Gators on Blondy Black's 45-yard punt return.

The Tennessee-Duke battle at Durham tops the outside program Saturday, followed by Louisiana State's invasion of the Texas Longhorns' battlegrounds. Georgia will get a night test with South Carolina, victor over North Carolina.

Cracker Grad Holds Phillies To Three Hits

Strikes Out Three in Five Innings; Beazley Edges Meers.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers, new National League champions, wound up their regular season today by beating the Phillies, 5 to 1, for their hundredth victory of the year, first time any Brooklyn club had attained that figure. Bob Chipman, Atlanta graduate, who took over the Dodger pitching in the fifth, was credited with the victory in his first big-league showing.

Chipman yielded only three hits and struck out three Phillies.

Frankie Gustine scored in the fifth after the Reds marked up a two-run lead in the first and second innings, and then a flurry of three hits brought in two more Pirate runs in the sixth, Cox and Rikard crossing the plate.

Marion Miley Was Star for Decade

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 28.—(AP)—Marion Miley, shot to death this morning by robbers at Lexington, Ky., had been an important competitor on the winter women's golf circuit in Florida since 1930.

Last season she won the Palm Beach women's invitational, defeating socialite Grace Amory in the finals; reached the quarter-finals of the Miami Biltmore invitational, and also participated in the Nassau, Ormond Beach and St. Augustine tournaments.

In 1936 she lost to Patty Berg in the Biltmore finals.

Yanks Remain 1-2 Choice To Win From Dodgers

But Brooklyn Wins 100 Games in Tough Field Against 101 for American League Champions.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The warmup for the World Series between the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees began quietly today where the regular season left off.

This will be the sixth "subway series" for this metropolis and even the presence of the Dodgers, giving the show a new star, was not enough to stir the Sabbath calm.

The lack of flags and bunting and windows full of pictures and shouting in hotel lobbies, accepted customs in other series cities, did not mean that the immensity of this year's diamond classic has escaped the fans of New York, however. It meant they were just getting their breath for the big blow to come.

The storm will strike soon enough. The Dodgers prepared for it tonight by moving en masse into a Manhattan hotel where they hoped to find a little more peace and quiet than will be possible in the borough of Brooklyn for the next week or so.

It was quiet across the river in Flatbush today, too, but tomorrow they are planning a mammoth celebration centered around a parade and there will be plenty of steam for the series from there on.

CROWD OF 70,000.

The first game at Yankee Stadium Wednesday at 1:30 p. m. (Eastern Standard time) may attract a capacity crowd of about 70,000 for the biggest turnout in the history of the series.

All reserved seats for the games at the Stadium were sold out weeks ago and the tickets for Brooklyn's share of the series in Ebbets Field, which seats only 32,000, were gobbled up as soon as they were placed on sale a few days ago.

There will be 28,000 unreserved grandstand and bleacher seats placed on sale the morning of each game in Yankee Stadium, where the second contest will be played Thursday, and the sixth and seventh sessions on October 8 and 10, if necessary.

The tremendous interest in the series, in excess of recent years, was reflected in the betting, which the bookmakers called the biggest in history.

The Yankees were favorites, 1 to 2, while the Dodgers opened at 12 to 5. These long odds on the Dodgers caused the early rush of money and they were expected to shorten before the series opens.

There isn't that much difference between the teams. The National League this year was a great deal stronger than the American League, which the Yankees overwhelmed. Yet at the finish today the Dodgers had won 100 games fighting at every corner while the Yanks had captured only 101 from their inferior opposition.

ANYTHING CAN HAPPEN.

In a short series anything can happen—and anything can happen to the Dodgers at any time. They are an unpredictable, but not unstable, mixture of rookies and veterans and they are pepped up for their big moment like a collection of college kids.

They have pitching and power sufficient to give the mechanically incomparable Yankees a battle. Whitlow Wyatt and Kirby Higbe each won 22 games from National League opponents and Wyatt proved himself one of the outstanding hurlers in either league. They have good secondary mound strength and a fine relief hurler in Hugh Casey.

On the offense they have Dolph Camilli, whose 34 home runs topped the best production of any Yankee, and Pete Reiser, the league's batting champion, who also hit the most triples and doubles of anybody in the senior circuit.

Reiser felt a twinge in his right elbow while throwing yesterday and remained out of the two final games of the season, but X-ray pictures showed nothing wrong and he said he felt fine today.

SICK GET WELL.

All other players of both clubs also were in good shape. The two Yankee sick men, Charley Keller and Red Rolfe, recovered in time to get tuned up for the series in the American League champions' closing games.

The Yankees are favored to win their fifth world championship in six years because they have a marvelous fielding team with dependable, but not spectacular, pitching, and a power rather than percentage attack featuring Joe DiMaggio and Keller, who between them have hit 63 home runs and batted in 247 tallies.

The opposing pitchers for the opening game are almost sure to be Wyatt for the Dodgers and Red Ruffing for the Yankees. Ruffing, a 15-game winner this year, has won five times and lost once in previous series competition.

After this pair probably will come Curt Davis, Kirby Higbe and Fred Fitzsimmons for the Dodgers and Lefty Marius Russo, Ernie Bonham and Lefty Gomez for the Yankees.

John Barnhill Worried as Vol Foes Triumph

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 28.—(AP)—John Barnhill's eyes widened Saturday night after reading victorious scores posted by four Tennessee opponents.

"Judging from today's games, particularly Vanderbilt, Alabama, Duke and Kentucky, it looks like the Vols will be taking it on the chin several times this season—and like it," the Tennessee head coach opined.

"But we'll be in there fighting," he added.

Outstanding performances by the opponent teams somewhat overshadowed a team physician's report today that Max Partin, Vols' sophomore wingback, would be lost for the Duke game next Saturday.

"Partin has not recovered from a slight brain concussion suffered in the Furman game," said Dr. Rex Powell. "He'll not see service against Duke."

Saturday's scrimmage was described by Barnhill as "both good and bad in spots."

Gridiron Official Fractures Leg

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28.—(AP) "Red" Friesell, of Pittsburgh, nationally known official, suffered a fracture of the left leg Saturday night while acting as referee at the National Professional Football League game between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Philadelphia Eagles at Shibe Park.

The game was held up for more than 15 minutes while doctors were called from the stands to examine him. Later an ambulance was driven on the field to remove him. He was taken to Temple hospital.

The accident happened in the first quarter with Brooklyn ahead, 14 to 0. Friesell apparently was accidentally kicked by a Brooklyn player.

Amateur Baseball

SMYRNA, SYLVAN HILLS WIN.

Smyrna and Sylvan Hills joined Grove Park and Blackwell and Davis in the semi-final round of the City Amateur Baseball Tournament with impressive victories over Red Oak and Clarkston yesterday afternoon. Smyrna ousted Red Oak, 8 to 3, at John A. White, while Sylvan Hills, the defending champion, shut out Doug Fowler's Clarkston nine, 4 to 0, at Piedmont. Grove Park advanced Saturday over Brookhaven. Blackwell gained the round of four last Sunday.

In the Red Oak-Smyrna game, Glenn Mitchell and Renda Swygert tangled in a pitching battle until the top half of the ninth inning when hits by Bill Brown, Bacon, Carter Mitchell, Harry Mitchell and Paul Morris accounted for four runs. The score was 4 to 3, Smyrna, before this uprising. Robert Bacon and Paul Morris were the leading offensive performers for the winners, with four for five each. The Swygert boys led Red Oak at bat. Renda and Frank got two for five, while Allen poled out a home run. Mitchell fanned 12 men and Swykert sat down 10 on strikes.

Red Spruill's six-hit chunking featured Sylvan Hills' triumph over Clarkston. Fast fielding by his mates cut down two runners at the plate, but other than this he was in complete charge. Milton Vinson also pitched fine ball, giving up only seven hits, the most damaging being a home run by Raymond Melton with one on in the sixth. James Towns cracked out three for four and Vinson two for three to lead the hitters.

Blackwell and Davis whipped Brisbine Park, 8 to 7, in a practice tilt at Piedmont. Kendal, Messengale, Etheridge and Sullivan were the leading hitters. Buster Rantin's triple in the eighth proved the margin of victory.

The semi-final line-up Sunday will place Grove Park against Sylvan Hills and Blackwell and Davis against Smyrna.

Beautiful Buick Models for 1942 on Display Here Next Friday

Six New Lines Covering Wide Price Range

Public Invited To Visit Buick Display, Spring and Harris Streets.

Six new lines of Buick motor cars covering a wide price range from the lower to the higher priced brackets and embodying outstanding mechanical as well as appearance improvements, will be on display at Southern Buick, Inc., display rooms, 230 Spring street, corner Harris, next Friday, October 3, says Hix H. Green, president of thelocal company.

Following a long period of engineering development, which had its inception prior to, and in its principal stages coincided with the natonal defense program, the new cars are described by the Buick management as the practical and sturdy products designed to carry the Buick name through the period of national emergency.

The new Buicks for 1942 will be built on six chassis varying in wheelbase from 118 inches for the lowest priced group of models to 139 inches for the Series 90 Limited cars with which the company competes in the higher price field. Two valve-in-head, straight eight engines of exclusive fireball design are used, with three power ratings ranging from 110 to 165 horsepower and involving the use as standard equipment on all but the lowest rated engine of compound carburetion, refined to new standards of performance. Compound carburetion is also obtainable in the lower priced cars.

The streamlined character of the cars is accentuated by new airfoil fenders which are carried through onto the door panels and, in the case of the Series 50 Super and Series 70 Roadmaster convertible coupes and Sedanets, stream completely through the door to join the rear finder at the rear fender shield line. Full length trim strips tie in with the front and rear bumper extensions and accentuate the long, sleek lines of the car.

Convertible coupes in the 50 and 70 Series, having electrically operated tops and six-passenger compartments of sedan dimensions supplant the comparable models of last year and have eliminated the need of convertible phaetons which were dropped from the 1942 line. An important addition to the same series is a Sedanet model of new design having greater window area and more passenger space.

Structurally, the new Buick bodies are designed for unusual solidity and the passenger comfort advantages that accrue from solid construction. Among major features are full box section construction where structural bracing is required.

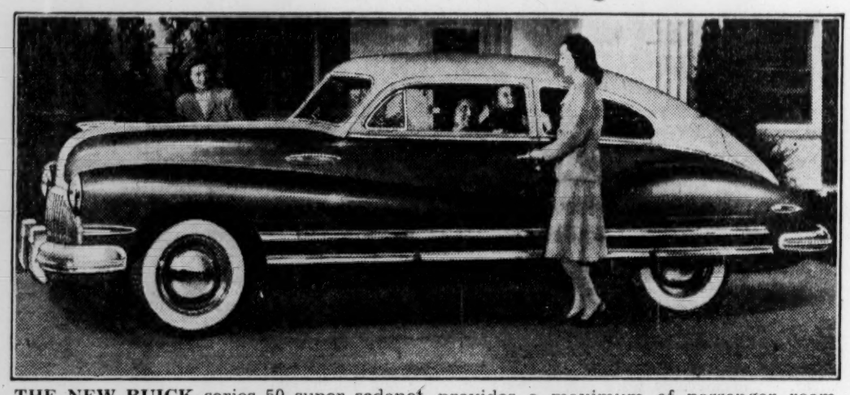
Interiors are luxuriously appointed and equipped in keeping with the modern styling of the cars. Keynoting the interior finish is the improved instrument panel on the 50 and 70 Series, with headlight type clock and speedometer, radio and accessory control grille mounted in the center of the panel, radio control buttons and tuning dials above instead of below that instrument, and new damascene finish of the lower section of the panel, common to all models.

Year round comfort is effectively provided by a new venti-heater, which serves both to warm the car in winter and provide maximum ventilation in summer. All models are equipped to use the system, which is standard on the Series 90 Limited cars and available as an accessory in all other series.

A major improvement in the riding qualities of the new cars is reported by engineers through the confined use of softer rear springs, changed shock absorber calibrations and entirely new wide rim wheels, the latter development contributing importantly to roadability and steering qualities. As a result, an unusually soft rear seat ride is produced, wheel chatter effectively reduced and the car's general stability benefited.

The Buick 1942 line is offered in 23 models, three fewer than last year. The six groups of cars are the Series 40A Special, 118-inch wheelbase; Series 40 B Special, 121-inch wheelbase; Series 50 Super, 124-inch wheelbase; Series 60 Century, 126-inch wheelbase; Series 70 Roadmaster, 129-inch wheelbase, and Series 90 Limited, 139-inch wheelbase.

The public is most cordially invited to drop into Buick headquarters here and inspect this, the most attractive line of Buicks ever shown by the company.



THE NEW BUICK series 50 super sedanet provides a maximum of passenger room and comfort in this popular coupe-sedan body type. Added to the Buick series 50 group for 1942, its long graceful lines are emphasized by fully streamlined fender treatment, greater window area and longer wheelbase. Bumpers are extended and curved around to protect fenders. It is mounted on a 124-inch wheelbase chassis and its Fireball engine has improved compound carburetion as standard equipment. A complete line of 1942 Buick models will be on display at Southern Buick, Inc., next Friday, October 3, 230 Spring street, corner Harris street.

Pancake Flour And Perkwheat Pride of Mill

Perkerson's Old Mill at Austell Supplying Many Housewives.

Perkerson's Mill, one of the old-established mills in Georgia, now conducted at Austell by J. D. Perkerson's Sons, continues to grind out the wholesome and nutritious foods that have long been popular with mothers and housewives.

Take pancake flour, for instance, as one of their choice products.

All kiddies love pancakes.

There can be nothing better suggested than Perkerson's wholewheat prepared pancake flour.

Children will thrive on pancakes made of this popular brand of flour. It is a delightful way to get vitamin B1 into their daily diet. Perkerson's pancake flour is fortified by adding an extra wheat germ.

Another product popular with all housewives and cooks, and always a delight for growing boys and girls, is Perkwheat cereal. If you want to enjoy the healthful goodness of a really delicious breakfast food, try it.

Made of crushed wheat, Perkwheat contains the whole grain and besides having health-building qualities is enjoyable and tasty as well.

In addition to Perkwheat, other well-known products made by the firm include self-rising corn meal, whole wheat and graham flour.

Perkerson's whole wheat pancake flour, said to be rich in vitamin B1, is fortified with extra wheat germs. The firm's corn meal is believed to be the only self-rising corn meal made in the entire country. The products are sold by grocery stores throughout the state and are shipped in any amount to individuals anywhere in the nation.

Here is a recipe for making Perkwheat muffins. Try this just one time, and there is no doubt about how well you will like it: One cup Perkwheat, one cup sifted flour, 3 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, one-fourth teaspoon salt, two tablespoons sugar, one egg, well beaten, three-fourths cup of milk, three tablespoonfuls melted butter or shortening. To sifted flour, add baking powder, sugar, salt, then resift. Add egg, milk and shortening; beat until thoroughly mixed. Add Perkwheat. Pour into greased muffin tins and bake for 25 minutes in oven (400 degrees F.).

Perkerson's Mill was established in Austell 95 years ago by the grandfather of the mill's present owners.

TASTY BREAKFAST CEREAL—Self-rising pancake flour, and other good products, come from Perkerson's mill at Austell, while the little city boasts of some attractive girls who know what wholesome foods the mill grinds out.

Prior Tire Co. Equipped To Help All Motorists

Curtailment of automobile production, liable to become even more drastic in the near future, is so important to American car owners that OPACS has just issued a booklet of advice to motorists entitled, "Your Car and National Defense." Among other precautions necessary for preserving the life of a car, these are listed:

1. Grease every 1,000 miles.
2. Wax four times a year.
3. Keep tires inflated.

Prior Tire Company, located at Peachtree and Pine, is fully equipped to perform these services and every other large or small automobile repair job. Prior Tire's facilities are unusually large, and a day-and-night expertly trained staff of automobile mechanics and service men assures patrons of satisfactory and undelayed action.

Prior Tire's new fender and body repair department, in charge of a trained expert with 30 years' experience, is completely equipped to make minute or large-scale repairs. Dented fenders left alone may rust and result in serious deterioration. Prior Tire also is equipped with a complete paint shop—repaints entire cars as well as small paint repair jobs.

During these emergency days, when preservation is imperative, the ideal motto all car owners might well adopt is the old adage, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Motorists who wait until a car rides like a rattle-trap and looks almost as decrepit will learn to their own sorrow that a few small adjustments made before small troubles grow into large troubles might have saved many dollars. Shortages of metal parts is, too, an important factor in protecting parts now in use.

Not every car owner has time to delve very deep into a study of the intricate mechanics which make up an automobile motor and body. Trained mechanics, in checking cars, can make small adjustments that insure smoother, more efficient running. Frequent lubrications, brake check-ups, spark plug replacements, etc., are merely a few of the average adjustments every car requires as the mileage mounts on its speedometer.

Prior Tire's services cover almost every possible ill that could befall an automobile. Complete wrecker service is available 24 hours per day. Gas, oil, washes, new batteries, battery recharging, new tires, tire retreading, every type of automobile accessory are only a few of the many merchandise and service features car owners can obtain at Prior Tire Company.

SEEN HER SWARMING?

"Here's my sister, ain't she charming? Watch and you may see her swarming."
If you see swarmer termites (often miscalled "flying ants") in or near your home—watch out! They are certain evidence that a colony of termites is working away nearby.
Termites are tiny insects which nest in the ground and come up to attack the wood in buildings. Once or twice a year some of the termites "swarm" out to found new colonies, leaving thousands of workers behind to carry on their destructive work. Usually home owners don't suspect their presence until after costly damage has been done.
Don't take a chance on termites damaging your home. Call Terminix for a free inspection. Over 500,000 property owners have asked for this free service. No obligation, of course.

Czech Premier Held by Nazis for 'Treason'

tivity of the secret police in Bohemia-Moravia has been the more extensive list in the official gazette of confiscations of property of persons regarded as enemies of the state.

(Reports fro mthe fugitive Czech government in London have told of sabotage and "go slow" strikes in such vital war industries as the Skoda armaments plants, but these have never been confirmed officially in Berlin.)

Civil Authority Retained.

No details were released on regulations under the state of emergency, but it generally includes a curfew, closing of theaters and other public gathering places, summary executions, exceptionally heavy prison terms and confiscation of property for acts regarded as offenses against the order and security of the state.

The civil state of siege differs from martial law in that extraordinary powers continue to rest in the hands of the civil administration instead of the army.

The Germans on September 10 ordered a state of civil emergency in Norway to halt the spread of strikes and sabotage. There, too, the drastic step was taken shortly after Heydrich appeared on the scene. He had gone to Oslo to confer with police heads.

Second Emergency Order.

Premier Elias who is to be tried by a "people's court," was trained in the Austrian-Hungarian army and entered the Czech army after the World War. He was made a division general during the Munich crisis mobilization and thereafter was appointed deputy to General Jan Syrovy, who became premier of the post-Munich government.

Just before the German occupation of Czecho-Slovakia in March, 1939, Elias directed military measures against Slovakia when it declared its independence. He became premier and minister of interior on April 27, 1939.

In the short and stormy 2 1-2-year history of the Czech protectorate, this is the second time that a state of emergency has been proclaimed by the German authorities.

Martial law was established in five districts during November, 1939, following student demonstrations which led to bitter clashes. Black-shirted Nazi S. S. troops occupied university buildings, arrested hundreds of students and executed a number as an example.

NAZI TROOP TRAINS REPORTED BLOWN UP

LONDON, Sept. 28. — (AP) — Czech government authorities in London said today that increasing sabotage in former Czecho-Slovakia had slowed arms factory output as much as 50 per cent, blown up a number of German troop trains and disorganized transportation.

One troop train was crushed by the collapse of a tunnel in Vlara Pass, Slovakia, just after the train entered it, said reports filtering into London. The Czech government maintains constant communications with rebel leaders in the homeland by secret channels, the authorities said.

An arms factory "go slow" strike has crippled the output of such great concerns as the Skoda works at Pilsen, the reports said. Peasants were said to be burning granaries throughout the country in night-riding raids and then forming for angry hunger marches by day.

Radio Blasts Heydrich.

A secret Czech radio station called "the station for national liberation" broadcasts nightly. The announced declared in the broadcast heard in London tonight that Reinhard Heydrich, newly appointed German deputy protector, was "the bloodiest man of all the bloody Nazis."

"Czech people!" he cried, "Heydrich was sent to provoke you to open revolt and a drive all Czechs to their knees, but the unity of the Czech people will frustrate the Nazi plan."

A Czech government official thumbing through a sheaf of messages said that workers in some armaments plants were so slow they looked like slow-motion pictures.

Recently, he said, there have been explosions in major Czecho-Slovak powder works. Railway damage was said to have been extensive.

Czech authorities credited some of the increase in sabotage to broadcasts of "Colonel Britton," the originator of the "V" campaign. Dr. Eduarfd Benes, President of the provisional government, has made several broadcasts calling upon the people to maintain their passive resistance and to be prepared to "strike for freedom when the time comes."

Incidents Increasing.

The incidents of sabotage have increased sharply since the start of the German-Russian war because of the natural inclination of the Slavs of former Czecho-Slovakia to support Russia, the "great mother of the Slavs," authorities said.

"The temper of the Czech women has had much to do with the strong will of our people to resist," said one official. "A notable example of this was the hunger march of the women of Nachod recently. Their demonstrations are exceedingly embarrassing to the Germans and a source of inspiration to all true Czecho-Slovak men.

"On September 16, the anniversary of the death of President (Thomas G.) Masaryk, the Czech government in London ordered a boycott of the Nazi-owned Czecho-Slovak newspapers. Our messages say that it was very effective.

Irritant to Germans.

"It must have been irritating to the Germans to find the people, almost as one man, reading Czech classics as they rode the street cars to work.

"It would be as if you stepped aboard a New York subway and discovered a whole train absorbed in Shakespeare or Milton.

"All of these incidents, large and small, must have taken their toll of Hitler's patience with the Reichs-protector, Von Neurath.

"Whether the tempo of the Czech resistance quickens or slackens must be decided by future events. But of one thing the world may be sure. Neither Von Neuraths nor Heydrichs will cause them to shirk their responsibilities."

Italy, Britain Engaged in Air, Sea Struggle

reported raids on a place called Elmas, Sardinia, without mentioning Cagliari, a "borrizo," Sicily, and the Palermo harbor, as well as Marsala, Agrigento, Porto Empedocle, and Dardia. The British communique claimed considerable destruction wrought on seaplanes and grounded aircraft, various industrial plants and railway centers, and supplies. It admitted the five British plane losses.)

Although the Italian communique did not say that the "naval formation" under attack was a convoy observers thought it probable that British warships were ushering fresh supplies through to Malta or to General Sir Claude Auchinleck's Army of the Nile.

Some observers even thought the ships might be carrying tanks for Russia via the Suez canal and Persian gulf.

Ornithological Society To Hold Fall Session

STATESBORO, Ga., Sept. 28.—(AP)—The Georgia Ornithological Society, which has promoted a general movement to convert back yards into bird sanctuaries and refuges, will convene in fall session at Pine Mountain near Warm Springs.

Dr. R. J. H. DeLoach, president, said the society could wield a potent influence in the framing of laws, directing of policies and originating movements for bird study and protection.

Life in Army Found To Be Aid to Appetite

Wheeler comprised the first foursome.

They each brought a letter of introduction from Colonel L. R. Hathaway, commandant of the battalion, pointing out they were the week's outstanding soldiers at Camp Wheeler, that they were the high scorers on the rifle range, and that only two points separated the high from the low scorer.

"I am in receipt of your amazing letter," the letter from Colonel Hathaway said, "and am really overwhelmed with your kindness and generosity."

E. C. Sharpe, assistant manager, acted as host for the men Saturday night upon their arrival.

AN APOLOGY

SOUTHEASTERN ARTISTS over a period of years have furnished Atlantans the highest type of entertainment with such artists as Cab Calloway, Count Basie, Bill "Bojangles" Robinson, Silas Green Shows, as well as many others. It is the settled policy of Southeastern Artists that all patrons shall be accorded the most in courtesy, respect and cordiality and they deeply regret it when anything occurs contrary to their policy.

They wish to make this apology relative to the Eddie "Rochester" Anderson entertainment in the City Auditorium last week. The entire program was under the exclusive control and direction of the entertaining organization and Southeastern Artists earnestly request that they be not charged with this sole instance of deviation from their usual policy.

Southeastern Artists pledge anew to their patrons, that redoubled efforts will be made to maintain their established policy of high quality entertainment.—(adv.)

The Strange Case of

THE CHICKEN THAT STARTLED the SCIENTIST

A Short Short Story

COMPLETE ON THIS PAGE

HERE was just an ordinary French boy, son of a tanner in the town of Arbois. As a young lad, more than a hundred years ago, he was distinguished by no particular brilliance—unless, indeed, we can call an inquisitive mind a sign of high intelligence.

This youth was, however, possessed of tender sensibilities, a love of home and family—plus an indomitable will. His first days at school in Paris reflected that combination, as he fought manfully against bitter homesickness.

The Homesick Schoolboy

"Oh, just for a whiff of the old tannery," he cried. "I am sure that would cure this ache in my heart."

This and other battles he fought and won. His inquisitive mind directed his efforts into scientific channels, his zeal for perfection made him indefatigable in experimentation. That zeal, carried into manhood, finally added his name to the list of immortals whose scientific research and achievements added priceless benefits to the sum of human welfare.

One magnificent passage comes down to us in the legends that surround this man who grew from a homesick boy into a man the whole world honored. Here is a graphic illustration of how he never overlooked the tiniest clue to ultimate success in all his ceaseless efforts to combat disease and thereby ease the lot of humanity.

One day he was examining a chicken which had been a subject of his experiments. A fine fowl, it was—although at the time the sullen victim of some mysterious poultry ailment. While our scientist pondered his problem he was called from his laboratory by some urgent message.

Inadvertently, answering the outside summons, he plunged the bird into a nearby pail of hot water . . . and absentmindedly left it there. When he returned—

Young, Ambitious Scientist

18th Century Milk Delivery

This man of science was amazed to discover that the bird had completely recovered! The chicken which a few minutes before had been leaden-footed and listless was now fluttering and alert, miraculously alive and lively!

Not a man to accept miracles without investigation, this knight of the laboratory sought the cause . . . and firmly established the fact which we now accept without question—that the application of heat in certain quantities destroys disease-producing bacteria.

Convinced and enthused by his discovery, our disciple of research applied his principle to the tiny organisms which cause fermentation in wine—and saved the French wine industry millions of francs. His revelations later were applied to milk—and were outstandingly instrumental in developing the care and protection of that universal health beverage from its haphazard methods of production to the present high level of guaranteed purity, wholesomeness and uniformity.

The illustrious man we consider, of course, is Louis Pasteur. The process he gave us—besides his other boons to humanity—is now known as the process of pasteurization. His life, until his death at 73 in 1895, was a life of complete, never-flagging, deeply studious service, remarkably filled with the success of real accomplishment.

Not one of his deeds, however, can match—in circumference of his beneficial influence—his development of that health-insuring process which we call pasteurization, and which, today, is affording more and more protection to you, your family and the families of your friends and neighbors. Let Your Doctor Advise You In Choosing a Specialist

By Dr. William Brady.

A request constantly recurring in the mail suggests that keeping up with the Joneses has a good deal to do with the high cost of medical care.

The request is something like this: "Have been treated by several local doctors for over a year and have tried several (near-doctors), too. They do not seem to help me. Please recommend a good specialist in (city)."

Apparently people who decide to consult a specialist believe a specialist is a superior type of physician, a super-duper-doctor who knows more or has more skill than ordinary practitioners or mere "local" doctors have.

That is a foolish and costly notion. Certainly one physician here or in a distant city, may know more or have greater skill than another, but that is not because the capable one purports to be a specialist, nor need a doctor have greater knowledge or greater skill than his neighbors or colleagues in order to become a specialist in any field he prefers.

Medical specialism in America is purely a matter of the personal preference or choice of the doctor himself. Any doctor who has obtained the degree, doctor of medicine, bestowed by the medical college upon completion of the medical course, and a license from the state or province, which permits him to practice medicine and surgery, may enter upon general practice or hold himself out as a specialist in any branch or field of medicine or surgery without further qualification or experience, if he wishes. While specialists recognized by the rank and file of the profession command the respect and confidence of their medical colleagues by reason of years of postgraduate study and experience in their chosen fields, there are far too many of the other type of specialists in Yankeeland.

I call the other type "brass specialists," meaning they are not genuine. Brass specialists take advantage of popular credulity to appeal directly to the public for patronage—not in the honest way of a merchant who buys and pays for publicity, but in the devious ways open to a shrewd charlatan who does not choose to quack it openly. They use the prestige the name "specialist" carries in the mind of the untutored layman in unfair competition with honest general practitioners. Right there is the outstanding difference between the brass specialist and the genuine specialist.

South American Setting Will Be a New Note In Disney's Next Movie

By Louella O. Parsons.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 27.—(INS) The very next Walt Disney movie will have a South American background. Walt is already at work in Buenos Aires, where 16 members of his staff have established a workshop on the roof of the 20-story Alvear Palace hotel. An interesting letter from Percy Forster, King Features representative in Buenos Aires, says that Walt and Mrs. Disney, after a few days given over to formal functions and visits, have settled down to work. The Disneys, he says, were guests at a famous Argentine ranch where Walt took lessons in throwing the lariat, drank yerba mate, and attempted to "bust" an Argentine bronco. He also studied the gauchos.

Big Crosby, now in Buenos Aires, according to Mr. Forster, is buying race horses. He already had arranged for the purchase of two before reaching Buenos Aires and he will watch them run under his own colors on the famed Palermo race track in the most important race of the year before shipping them to Hollywood. Bing plans to buy nine thoroughbreds during his visit.

Pretty safe in putting money on Jeanette Macdonald and Metro getting together on a new contract. Each time it expires there is a little flurry that Jeanette may go somewhere else, but it is never very serious as Metro has always done beautifully by her with stories and she has delivered top performances for them. You might know, especially in view of the fact that "Smilin' Through" is a great picture, that Jeanette would put her John Hancock on the dotted line. In the new deal she will make a non-singing picture—a dramatic story, after she finishes "I Married an Angel." A search is now on to find that story.

In this day of blase, bored glamour girls I don't know anyone more peppy or attractive than little June Clyde who can't be bothered being indifferent. Well, today I'll say June has something to really be happy about—she's just been signed for the femme lead in the stage show, "Banjo Eyes" with Eddie Cantor and she leaves for New York October 3 for rehearsals. The stage is nothing new for her for she was such a hit in London. Eddie, who has always thought she was a cute little trick, saw June in "Unfinished Business" and decided she was just the girl, so another actress owes a step up the ladder to Gregory La Cava, who gave her a real opportunity in his swell picture.

"Faint heart never won fair lady" is true in the case of Palmer Beaudette who flew in on Wednesday to see Cobina Wright Jr. The young man's persistence won, and so Mrs. Wright is announcing her debutante daughter's engagement to the wealthy young man from Pontiac. Beaudette is the grandson of the Beaudette who mde the Ford bodies. This family is well-known in the middle west. Plans for the marriage are indefinite since the groom-to-be is in Company G, 30th Infantry, stationed at San Francisco. He leaves soon for Georgia to go into an officers' training school. Meanwhile, Cobina will go on with her movie career. She has a new contract with 20th Century-Fox and —well, when she came to my house I never saw a happier girl —or a prettier one.

When one of M.-G.-M.'s talent scouts was traveling through the south, he told me the story I wrote about Marjorie Main attracted more attention than any I have written in a long time. He told me he was asked many questions about her. At that time I thought she might be teamed exclusively with Wally Beery, but Marjorie is too good an actress to be typed, and so now she is going into Norma Shearer's picture "We Were Dancing." She plays a judge. Remember her first important picture was in "The Women," which also starred Norma.

Your face needn't be greasy to get the beneficial effects of a night cream. You may choose the non-greasy cream mentioned in the article below. Lana Turner, M. G. M. star, looks her best as she prepares for bed in her negligee of satin and chiffon. Miss Turner is currently playing in "Honky Tonk."

A Night Cream Need Not Be Greasy

By Winifred Ware.

What is more unglamorous than a greasy face? It's hard on your own ego to spend your sleeping hours all greased up even though it may be just what your complexion needs. It isn't the most comfortable way of sleeping, either, and it certainly takes toll of pillow cases.

Don't think I'm going to recommend going without a night cream! Certainly not, for this is the season of the year when they are most needed. Skins are dried out from sun and winds and from neglect during fun-seeking vacations. They need reconditioning in preparation for the hard winter months. They need oils replenished and tissues refined. No indeed, I'm not recommending omitting a night cream but instead I am suggesting one that is non-greasy!

This preparation is something unusual. It's thinner than a cream, thin enough to pour out of the bottle. It contains all the rich, softening oils which your skin needs to refine it . . . yet it sinks right into the skin leaving it smooth and fresh feeling, nothing sticky, greasy or oily.

The cream feels so comfortable it may be hard to believe it can do so much good, but once you've used it you'll be convinced on that score. It aids in softening scaly skins, it replenishes the dried-out oils, giving your skin that dewy look of youth.

Many an older woman will welcome this cream, but I believe new brides will be happiest to discover it. Those who worry about their husbands seeing them at anything but their best appearance will find this a solution to their problem.

Most conveniently this cream is now available at a discount. For a limited time the products of this famous maker's line are being sold at 20 per cent reduction, which means a decided saving on this preparation. If you call Winifred Ware at Walnut 6565 or write her in care of The Constitution, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope, I'll be glad to tell you where it can be found.

MY DAY: An Expression Of Gratitude

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

WASHINGTON, Friday—This is a very difficult column to write. The time that one goes through between death and the final laying to rest of any human being is, for the people who are deeply concerned, a period when one feels almost suspended in space. Life must go on. The things that have to be done, must be done.

The jobs and the interests which are shoved aside temporarily, must not be completely neglected, because some day, very soon, they must be taken up again. Yet, always in the background, is the thought that out of life forever, has gone somebody who is a vital, active factor, and who never again will be present except in memory

Last night, when I was searching for some writing paper in the closet back of my desk, I stumbled on a box filled with old cameras and photographs, put aside years ago with some old letters. There was a letter from my father to my grandmother at a very sad period of his life, a few letters written to me, which I had kept because they expressed some sentimnt that I wished to preserve.

Among them was a photograph of my brother in the period when my aunts nicknamed him "The Cherub." He is dressed in a little black velvet suit, not old enough yet for manly trousers, so he might almost be mistaken for a girl, which must have irritated him greatly when he grew older. He has curls and a little round face with a solemn, and yet faintly amused expression. It might be one of Miachelangelo's little angels looking down from an old Italian painting.

Times change. No photographer would pose a little boy of three in such a way today, and yet the picture has charm. I sat tracing the resemblance of the baby features to those of the grown man who looked out at me from another picture hanging in its frame on my sitting room wall.

Shortly, his friends will pay their last tribute at the services here and then his daughter, Mrs. Edward Elliott, and his son, Henry P. Roosevelt, will go with us tonight to Tivoli, N. Y., where he will be placed in the vault beside our father and mother. Life will go on, and I hope the sun will shine, and I know that he would want all of us to remember, but to remember happily.

I am most grateful, not only to his many friends who have expressed their sympathy and affection for my brother, but also to the many people who have sent me messages because they had sustained some loss, and wished to express their sympathy to me personally.

Low-Cost Plan Offers A Protective Diet

By Ida Jean Kain.

To help the homemaker operating on a limited food budget, Dr. Hazel K. Stiebeling, food economist for the United States Department of Agriculture, has outlined a master food plan based on the national yardstick for better nutrition.

A good diet means having each day the foods that will promote good health. Actually, the difference between a poor diet and a good one consists in the amounts of the protective foods. It is on these foods that the menus must be based.

The first item in the low-cost master plan is milk. The stipulated daily amounts are: three to four glasses for children, two to three glasses for adults, a quart for the expectant mother, and one and one-half quarts for the nursing mother.

The important thing, Dr. Stiebeling points out, is to have the given quantity of milk every day rather than to have it in any special form. You can count that which is used in cooking or which comes in the form of cheese as well as the milk you drink. Canned milk or powdered milk, which is less expensive, may be used in cooking.

Second on the list are fruits and vegetables. On a low-cost diet, potatoes can be used once a day. They are economical sources of minerals, vitamins and calories. Dry beans, peas and peanuts can be included in the menus from two to four times a week, as they are not only good sources of iron and protein, but they are low in price.

Tomatoes or citrus fruit must appear on the menu at least five times a week and other sources of Vitamin C—raw cabbage, green pepper and uncooked salad greens—should supplement them.

You should serve your family green leafy and yellow vegetables six times a week. Kale, collards, turnip, mustard, beet and dandelion greens, and escarole, Swiss chard, watercress and parsley are economical but excellent sources of vitamins. The green vegetables are better than those which have a bleached-out look. Also, the yellow corn, Hubbard squash and yams provide an abundance of Vitamin A.

For protein, the diet for the week should furnish six small servings of lean meat, fish or fowl. The lean parts of the low-cost cuts are just as nutritious as those from the more expensive cuts. Everyone in the family should have from three to four eggs during the week.

A whole-grain cereal should be served once a day, and sometimes twice, and whole-grain bread hould be on the table at every meal. All cereals and breads should be in the form of whole grain or of the enriched variety for minerals and vitamins.

It is estimated that on such a low-cost plan, a family of four—two moderately active grown-ups and two school-age children—can be assured of the meals that measure up to the nutritional yardstick for $6.50 to $9 per week. The variation in the weekly cost depends upon the selection made in the protective food groups.

Since you cannot expect a great variety in the low-cost diet, good cooking becomes doubly important. It helps to vary the meals and to conserve the food essentials.

Ida Jean Kain.

Purely Personal Chatter About Atlanta Debutantes

(Editor's Note: This is the second of the second annual series of thumbnail sketches of Atlanta debutantes to be featured in Sally Forth's column every Monday. The sketches will present intimate glimpses into the lives of the belles whose names will make social history during this winter.)

By SALLY FORTH.

• • • WHEN THE good ship "S. S. Debutante" is launched on the social waves, Caroline Yundt is certain to be one of the most popular and fascinating passengers. Her election to the vice presidency of the club is a testimonial of her popularity and that she has lots of charm for her own sex.

Brunet and glamorous Caroline is the namesake of her mother, Mrs. George Yundt, who is the former Caroline Perdue, descendant of a long line of distinguished Georgia ancestors. Her parents will entertain at a supper-dance on November 7 at the Piedmont Driving Club, to introduce their pretty daughter to the unmarried contingent of society.

CAROLINE YUNDT.

After graduating from Washington Seminary two years ago, Caroline enrolled at Bradford College in Massachusetts. After leaving college, she studied shorthand and typing so as to be ready for anything serious that she elects to undertake. Witty and vivacious, Caroline states emphatically that she does not want a career, but she does want a position after experiencing all the thrills coming to her during her debut year.

One of Caroline's accomplishments is arranging flowers, and when Sally Forth chatted with her, she was very busy putting flowers in containers to beautify her Cherokee road home. She says her father is the efficient gardener, but she loves to cut and arrange blossoms according to her own ideas. Golf and badminton are her favorite outdoor sports, and Caroline often is seen serving and receiving shuttlecocks. This streamlined and capable debutante plays a good game of badminton on the court in the rear of her home, built in the fashionable residential sector of Atlanta.

Many honors have been bestowed upon Caroline, who was the May Queen at Washington Seminary during her senior year. She was elected to the presidency of the Phi Pi sorority, and was captain of the basketball team while studying at the seminary. She has devoted much of her time to cultural matters and is very fond of reading good literature. Her sisters are Mrs. O. L. Von Canon, of Chattanooga; Lucy Yundt and Fritzie Yundt. George Yundt Jr. and Albert Perdue Yundt are her brothers.

• • • TO LAURA Belle Jarvis goes credit for having one of the most original parties during rush season. She belongs to the Pi Pi sorority and gave the party to the rushees at her East Lake drive home. She called it "The Pi Pi Carnival," and stationed her brother, Charles Jarvis, dressed up in a cowboy suit, to act as the spieler and lure the rushees into the house with lots of attractive features. Bogus paper money was distributed and guests were told that the money would purchase everything they desired.

Pink lemonade, bottles of soft drinks, popcorn, wieners and hot dogs tempted the appetites, and the edibles were displayed in colorfully decorated booths. One of the wild animals on display turned out to be the family pet cat, which sat in a bird cage and mewed plaintively. Each rushee had the time of her life reaching in the grab bag for candy, chewing gum, whistles, bolos and dolls. The Pi Pi colors, blue and gold, floated from the flagpole in the yard, and Life's photographer was on hand to take pictures of the Pi Pi Carnival.

• • • NEWS FROM Puerto Rico comes from Edythe Chapman (Mrs. Sydney) Williams, who recently established residence in the tropical isle with her husband and their small daughter, "Patsy." Edythe writes that it's quite a change from the climate of Copenhagen, Denmark, where she and "Syd" lived for a year immediately after their marriage. In fact, she has discarded all the woolen clothing they used in Denmark and only knows the seasons are changing when she reads the advertisements in The Atlanta Constitution. For her, there's only a swim at the beach, and another coat of white polish for her shoes, while the days turn cool here.

Her small daughter is fast growing up and now demands to be called by her real name, Edythe. Though she is only three, she is beginning to speak Spanish so fluently that her mother hardly knows what she is talking about.

Edythe and "Syd" are thrilled that John and Eugenia Candler Wilson are their neighbors. The foursome spends much time together, for naturally they have much in common, all hailing from Atlanta.

Love Will Come Again

April Meets Curt De Witt on the Plane--- He Tells Her of His Own Divorce

INSTALLMENT II.

"Perhaps," the man smiled then, "if I'm going to tell you the story of my life," I'd better introduce myself. He took a card from a case in his pocket which revealed to April that he was Curt De Witt, president of Sherlock Steel.

"I'm Mrs. Kent Hillyer," April told him then, a little surprised that the attractive, lean jawed stranger was a man of such importance. He seemed much younger than she would have expected a man of his position to be. Certainly not quite 40, with a fine sensitive face that registered both strength and kindness.

"Your husband was golf champion three or four years ago, wasn't he?" De Witt asked.

When April nodded he told her he had seen Kent Hillyer play frequently on the links of several clubs to which he belonged, because he lived but a few miles from Douglaston out on the island.

April had often passed the De Witt estate. It was the most beautiful home on Long Island, she had always thought. A great white colonial mansion to stir the blood of any woman brought up in the south with acres of gardens and trees overlooking the waters of the sound.

"So we are neighbors," Curt De Witt smiled his warm charming smile. "That makes it right for me to take the liberty of giving you a little advice and telling you a bit of my own story, doesn't it?"

"Of course," April made an effort to smile.

It had been a long time since Curt De Witt had talked of his marriage and divorce. Although he spoke in the highest terms of the woman who had once been his wife, April could read between the lines that she had been the same sort of fun loving, irresponsible person Kent had always been.

De Witt had been too busy making good to waste his time playing with her, and so the inevitable had happened. He lived with his daughter Penny, aged 12. The former Mrs. De Witt had been married twice in the five years since their divorce, and was living in Hollywood. The father had full custody of his child to whom he was utterly devoted.

As happens very often when two people meet on shipboard, train or plane, Curt and April found themselves exchanging confidences that they would have hesitated to exchange with their oldest friends. Perhaps it was because they discovered they had much in common, and had gone through the same experiences with those they loved.

A little of April's heartbreak eased as she talked with the sympathetic stranger, who seemed suddenly not a stranger at all but someone she had known a long time. Curt De Witt was happy to see a little of the color return to her lovely face and her eyes lose a little of their dull misery. He was acutely conscious that she was one of the most charming young women he had ever seen in his life.

"Don't look back, my dear," he told April finally. "Close the door and lock it. I wasted years learning how useless it is to let something that can't be avoided destroy happiness. I learned it the hard way. You mustn't make the same mistake."

"But how," the girl pressed her cold hands together, "how can you stop loving someone who has been your life for so long? Can you turn love off like a faucet?"

"Perhaps not," the man sighed. "But you're young and very beautiful, and you must force yourself to go out and meet new people and keep busy. Love will come again. You must never shut yourself up and weep over what is past. Do you plan to go to business?"

April told him of her music school and that her old friend Gay Lorraine had joined her to teach dancing. They would live together and a maid would take care of Kenny while she earned a living. Gay had been a professional dancer, and they hoped to make the Hillyer-Lorraine School of Music and Dancing into something worth while.

Curt assured her work was a wonderful thing, but that it was even more necessary that she should plunge at once into a new social life.

"I sound like a meddlesome old lady," he said finally, "giving you all this serious advice. "But having gone through a marital blitzkrieg myself, I at least can tell you what not to do."

"You've helped a lot," April said with sincerity. "I'm glad you sat with me. It was all bottled up inside before we talked."

The lights of New York were showing in the distance and Curt De Witt said:

"We're almost home. What do you plan to do when we land?"

"Go home to my child," said April. "I haven't seen him in seven weeks. It's the first time we've ever been separated."

"Won't he be asleep?" Curt asked. "It's 10 o'clock. If no one is meeting you, you must let me take you home. Since we're neighbors."

"That's would be very kind of you," April hesitated. "But I'm afraid it would put you to a lot of trouble."

Curt patted her arm. "I'll take you home on one condition. That you'll come out and dance awhile first. Now is as good a time as any to start taking my advice. We'll do the town. What do you say?"

The idea would have seemed fantastic an hour before. But after a moment's thought April said she would go. After all Kenny would be asleep, and if she got tired enough she might get a little rest herself. Certainly there was little point in going home to weep on Gay's shoulder.

When the plane came down at LaGuardia field, Curt De Witt's chauffeur, Mike, stood beside his limousine near by. Curt assisted April from the air liner, carrying her bag and taking her arm as they walked down the gangplant.

"Here's Mike," he said, waving to the man who had been his first chauffeur, and Mike touched his cap. His florid Irish face lit with a friendly grin.

Then April saw Hill. She was so amazed she stopped dead in her tracks. He stood swaying on his feet a few feet away, taking in the scene with puzzled eyes. April said under her breath:

"There's my husband. Wait a second."

Curt De Witt recognized the large blond man as the one-time golf champion and one glance told him Kent Hillyer had been drinking heavily.

"Hello, darling!" he greeted her with a great show of hilarity. "I just dropped 'round to see if you didn't want to go out and cel'brate. Thanks for the mem'ries and all that stuff. How's about it?"

April's first impulse was to mother him as she always had. To take care of him and see that he got back to his own apartment all right. But cold reasoning and Curt De Witt's presence close by kept her from giving in to her feelings.

"No, Hill," she said not quite steadily, "I have other plans."

"I can see that," Kent glared in the direction of De Witt. It didn't take you long, to find another man, did it?"

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself," April told him quietly.

Hill raised his hat:

"Well, thanks for the mem'ries an' all that stuff. I'll be seein' you in the papers, darling."

April turned and walked away, her heart pounding coldly. When she got into the car, Kent stared after her in hurt disbelief.

Humiliation burned in two pink spots in April's cheeks. Her lovely chin raised a little higher, and she sank into the luxurious upholstery of the De Witt limousine with a defiant toss of her beautiful head. She was almost in a mood to celebrate!

When she arrived home in Douglaston in the wee' sma' hours of the morning, April had learned a great deal about Curt De Witt. He was a perfect gentleman, she decided. Charming, gallant, a brilliant conversationalist, a divine dancer and apparently had all the money in the world. She was very graceful to him when she held out her hand at the door:

"Thanks terribly," she smiled tiredly. "You've been very kind."

"Put me at the top of your list of escorts," he held her hand tightly, "any time you want to go places. I'd like to help you through these first deep waters, my dear. If I may?"

She nodded, feeling tears in her throat. Gay, standing by the window in the sunrise, was astonished to see the limousine drive up and April get out and walk up to the door with a dark handsome man who stood for several minutes holding her hand. April had orchids on her shoulder.

"Well," she said aloud, "that makes sense. I never would have believed it."

Gay dreaded spoiling April's celebration with the news it would be her unpleasant duty to impart. And she was more than sorry that another burden was to be added to April's slender shoulders.

For in the other twin bed in Gay's room slept April's 19-year-old problem sister, Cherry Lind. Cherry had left college, broken her engagement to Pat Hastings, and arrived the afternoon before with the announced intention of living with April and becoming a model.

Cherry always meant trouble.

On second thought, Gay decided not to tell April of Cherry's arrival until she had some rest. She hoped April wouldn't go into her room and see the lovely blonde sleeping there.

When April turned her key in the lock and saw Gay, she was surprised to find her up at the crack of dawn.

"Darling!" she smothered her old friend in a warm embrace. "You shouldn't have stayed awake for me."

"I slept awhile," Gay kissed her pale cheek. "But I was too excited about your coming home to stay in bed. Who's the man? What is this? Tell me everything! What have you been up to?"

"Wait a minute," April laughed. "Let me catch my breath. How's my baby?"

"Super," Gay said. "He has missed you terribly, and he was very excited last night when I told him you'd be home when he woke up. But he's in perfect health."

"I suppose if I open his door at this hour, he'll awaken and never go back to sleep. I'd better wait a few minutes," April restrained her desire to see Kenny with difficulty.

Continued Tomorrow.

Baering Down on the News

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer.

I am no efficiency expert, but it seems to me that Secretary Morgenthau is shaving it thinner than potato chips.

When the old boy limits corporations to six per cent, he isn't allowing for a bad day. And even the Garden of Eden had one of those.

Mr. Morgenthau's idea of a fair return gives business less room than two mule trains passing on the Bright Angel trail.

We have just recovered from Mr. Ickes' famous shortage of surplus, and now it looks like we are in for a dearth of reserve.

A six per cent margin of safety isn't enough, and business will be like the old farmer who yelled, "Stretch it out thin, boys, it's got to reach from the house to the barn."

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Whatever you want to accomplish try to start before 12:32 p. m. and after 7:05 p. m. for you can advance your positions at this time. Between 12:32 p. m. and 7:05 p. m. does not especially favor new undertakings and changes.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—After 12:13 p. m. active work of al sorts, ideas that require energy and enthusiasm, mechanical and industrial affairs, should be put into active practice, for you can go forward with full speed to your credit.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—Before 3:41 p. m. and after 9:31 p. m. is an excellent period, especially in matters that involve mental effort. Contracts with others should result agreeable, and this will be an auspicious time for dealings with those who are at the head of affairs. An excellent period for literary matters, and where diplomatic dealings are required. The evening hours suggest caution in traveling and avoid sudden changes.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—During the entire day and until 11:11 p. m. does not especially favor new beginnings. Travel and social activities are favorable.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—Previous to 1:38 p. m. will likely be an exciting time, when sudden demands will be made with startling force. Plan to exercise discretion and self-control, for changes and flare-ups in speech are not favored. After 1:38 p. m. personal advancements, sports, dealings with people of a professional nature.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—The entire day and until 11:57 p. m. favors business and financial matters. After 11:57 p. m. it would be well to pay attention to details to avoid misunderstandings.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—Previous to 7 p. m. may be considered an unimportant time for accomplishment, but this time may be very important in an unfavorable way if you allow yourself to be careless, vacillating, or if you enter into arguments. Between 7 p. m. and midnight favors literary and educational pursuits.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—Before 1:21 p. m. new beginnings may have a tendency to meet with disfavor. At this time others may not be sympathetic, or you will find much pessimism. DIMAGGIO ON AIR.

Joltin' Joe DiMaggio, the Yankee slugger, can relax now that his team has won the American League pennant. The strain is over and Joe, a good actor as well as ball player, will give some time to his thespian ability by appearing on Eddie Cantor's "Time to Smile" program tonight at 9 p. m. over the NBC-Red network.

Norman Tokar, heard as Willie in support of Ezra Stone on "The Aldrich Family," is an adept scripter and is currently turning out programs for "Manhattan at Midnight."

Half of the jury of 12, selected from the studio audience at the "Crime Doctor" programs, is composed of uniformed spectators, both soldiers and sailors or marines.

Louis-Nova Fight on Air Tonight at 10

Cecil B. DeMille Presents Drama; Fine Music Shows Offered.

"Third Finger, Left Hand," the cinema production which starred those popular screen lovers, Myrna Loy and William Powell, will be presented tonight over the "Radio Theater," under the direction of Cecil B. DeMille. Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and Martha Scott will handle the leading roles. Loy and Powell were scheduled to appear on the show, but, due to illness, a last-minute change was made.

The Joe Louis vs. Lou Nova fight will be broadcast over WATL tonight at 10 o'clock.

Two hundred and fifty hours or 10½ solid days of broadcasting spread over almost a decade will be rounded out by the Carnation Contented program when the 500th broadcast in the long series is heard at 10 o'clock over WSB.

In honor of the occasion, Maestro Percy Faith and his cast will salute their listeners with some of the music which has been most popular during the history of the program, and E. H. Stuart, president of the Carnation Company, which has sponsored the program since its inception on January 4, 1932, will speak.

"For America We Sing," the program presented by NBC in behalf of the defense savings bond campaign, will be heard at a new day and hour beginning tonight. Formerly heard on Tuesdays over the NBC-Blue network at 8:30 p. m., the series is now broadcast on Mondays at 9 p. m. over WAGA.

Tonight the spotlight will be shared by Frank Parker, tenor; Vivian della Chiesa, soprano, and Conrad Thibault, baritone. Dr. Frank Black conducts the orchestra and choir.

Music embraces a southern medley of "Down South" and "Oh, Lemuel," a duet by Miss Chiesa and Thibault of "Beautiful Dreamer," another duet by Miss Chiesa and Parker of "I Love You Truly," Miss Chiesa and Thibault again in "Just a-Wearyin' for You" and Parker in a solo, "The End of a Perfect Day."

Other featured numbers by orchestra and chorus are two Sousa marches and "When the Band Begins To Play." The finale, "America," is presented by the ensemble.

From a piano finger exercise Adolf Jensen developed the lovely melody of "Murmuring Zephyrs," which James Melton, tenor, will feature on the "Telephone Hour" tonight at 8 o'clock over the NBC-Red network and WSB. He will also sing the traditional cowboy tune, "The Old Chisholm Trail."

Francia White, soprano, will offer as her solo Jose Padilla's "El Relicario," while the chorus will sing the spiritual, "Oh Yes." The Bell Symphonic Orchestra, directed by Donald Voorhees, will play "Vocalise," by Rachmaninoff, and the "Prince Igor" march, by Borodin.

Amos and Andy Go To Harlem for Show

Amos 'n' Andy, who have been broadcasting the doings of a mythical Harlem for a decade, will do a broadcast that actually originates on the banks of the Harlem river September 29. They'll be at the Polo Grounds to see the heavyweight championship battle between Joe Louis and Lou Nova. A ticket storeroom at the grounds will serve as their broadcasting booth.

Bert Parks Is Involved In Old Spanish Custom

Bert Parks, announcer and singer of popular songs on the Thursday night "Cugat Rumba Revue," planted a light kiss on the cheek of Carmen Castillo, who is Mrs. Xavier Cugart, at rehearsal this week. "In Spain you know what we do for that?" growled Cugat, in a tone of assumed ferociousness. "What?" grinned Bert. "We do this," interrupted Carmen, turning her other cheek.

Lily Pons always 'phones her husband before he broadcasts, no matter where he is. Calling from Mexico City before Andre Kostelanetz went on the air the other day, his wife said she was listening to the station over which his program would come in 15 minutes—and that the station was at that moment broadcasting a half hour of records . . . Kostelanetz records!

Peter Van Steeden has been burning the midnight oil these nights working on—not music—but Christmas cards. The conductor likes to work out his own design for the greetings and has been so clever about it that he finds it harder and harder with each successive year to top the last one.

Entire Russian Front Reported Swept by Rain

10 Villages Recaptured In Smolensk Drive, Reds Assert.

By The Associated Press.

Russian battlefront reports declared last night the Red army had recaptured 10 more villages in a drive from Yelnya toward Smolensk and said siege forces around Leningrad were hurled from three lines or trenches by Russian counterattacks.

Along the whole bitterly contested front from the Baltic to the Black sea fighting continued without letup as the war with Germany went into its 15th week, a Soviet communique reported.

Authoritative London sources reported it was raining along the entire Russian front and hailed it as one "good factor" in the fighting there.

Following snowfall yesterday in Moscow, heavy rains drenched the fighting zones, these sources said, making it impossible for automobiles to travel more than three miles an hour on mud roads.

German reports said that Kronstadt, the island naval base guarding sea approach to Leningrad, was being shelled by German big guns, and declared that troops which won the great encirclement battle of Kiev were on the march again.

A DNB dispatch early today said German troops east of Kiev had gone ahead so fast that a single German division captured 20,000 prisoners in 24 hours.

Five German ships, including a cruiser, a destroyer, two transports and a tanker, have been sunk and two more destroyers damaged by Soviet naval forces and shore batteries in far-flung engagements in Arctic waters and the Baltic and Black seas, the Soviet information bureau announced early today.

The cruiser and destroyer were sunk and the other destroyers heavily damaged by Soviet coastal batteries and warships in the Baltic sea, the early morning communique said.

The two transports of 8,000 and 4,000 tons were sent to the bottom by the Red northern fleet somewhere in Arctic waters, and the tanker, of 1,000 tons, was sunk in the Black sea, it added.

The Army IN GEORGIA

"Planning an offensive, no doubt."

A preliminary analysis of health figures compiled by the surgeon general of the Army shows that during the calendar year of 1940, the death rate was only 2.8 per 1,000 men—the lowest of record in the Army, the War Department announced yesterday. The rate for 1939 was 3.1.

The mean annual strength of the Army was 336,886 men, up 75 per cent from that of the preceding year. This increase occurred in the last quarter with the induction of National Guard units, trainees and a considerable rise in enlistments.

Admission to hospital was at the rate of 776.3 per 1,000 men, up from 529 to 1939, but not unexpected with the influx of unseasoned troops during the late fall and early winter.

The improvement in the death rate is credited to the entrance of a large number of young men, the absence of serious epidemics and the policy of limiting induction to numbers that could be housed properly.

The 1939 ratio of hospital admissions for injury to those for disease was 1 to 4; in 1940 it was 1 to 8. The 1939 ratio of deaths from disease to those from injury was practically 1 to 1; in 1940 it was 1 to 1.7. This increase was probably due to the greatly increased use of automobile, truck and plane transportation.

"See," my wife said, pointing to an ad in the newspaper, "Blank's are advertising light bulbs at what must be actual cost. It's a trick to get you into the store."

"I've heard that story about 'leaders' being a 'trick' to get people into a store so often that I'm sick of it," I said. "You speak as if it were a fraudulent practice of some kind. Let's get this settled right now.

"You're free, white and 21, of sound mind and body?"

"I hope so," my wife replied.

"You have a normal amount of will power?"

"Certainly," she said.

"That's fine," I nodded. "I just wanted to be sure that Blank's aren't taking unfair advantage of you. There's no law that requires you to buy anything except those bargain light bulbs when you go into that store. Blank's feel that they have a lot of mighty fine merchandise that will be attractive to you. They feel that when you see the quality and value of their things, you'll want to buy. They're so confident that they can be of genuine service to you that they're willing to bet on it."

"How do you mean?" my wife asked.

"They're willing to offer you an item on which they'll make little or no profit, just to get you into their store. What they're saying is, 'We think that when you see the attractive items and excellent values in our displays, you'll find a lot of things you want. You don't have to buy them, but we think you'll want to.'

"That's no trick. It's a customer inducement that only a merchant who sincerely believed in his business would dare offer."

H. P. Tanner Succumbs Here

Mrs. Roosevelt Hits Insincere 'Isolationists'

No Such Thing as Separation for Nations, She Declares.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP)—The sincere advocates of America First "are misguided because they seem to think that there is such a thing as separation and isolationism for any individual country," Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt said tonight in opening a series of sponsored radio broadcasts over a NBC network.

She added that "they have been carried away by the feeling of national pride and security."

"One can forgive the sincere idealists," the President's wife said, "but one cannot forgive those who for personal and selfish reasons insist on being blind and advocate a course which would destroy us as a nation, and which seems to indorse the principles which hold sway in other nations because their leaders consider them necessary to their national life."

World Leader Of Girl Scouts To Speak Here

Mrs. Leigh-White Tells Of War Work Done In England.

"The war has created a tremendous demand for Girl Scouts and Girl Guides," Mrs. Arethusa F. G. Leigh-White, of Bantry, Ireland, head of the World Association of Girl Scouts and Girl Guides, said yesterday afternoon upon her arrival in Atlanta.

Mrs. Leigh-White, here to make an address at Lakewood Park this afternoon during the Girl Scout program at the Southeastern World's Fair, has been touring the United States for the past 14 months.

"As a result of their training, England's Girl Scouts are doing yeoman work in war relief, Red Cross activities, as canteen workers, and in providing recreation for the smaller children who have been evacuated from the congested areas to the country," Mrs. Leigh-White said.

She predicted these same girls will be called upon to aid in the reconstruction and rehabilitation work that will come after the war.

Mrs. Leigh-White, who is completing her tour of the United States, plans to return to her home in Ireland early in November. She declined comment on political subjects or subjects dealing with the international scene.

Mrs. Gertrude Harris, Atlanta woman lawyer, was elected president of the National Association of Women Lawyers at their meeting in Indianapolis yesterday, which preceded by a day the opening of the annual convention of the American Bar Association.

12,000 Hear Nix Laud Outlook Of U. S. Youth

"Democracy and Christianity are bound together," Abit Nix, Athens, Ga., attorney, said last night in an address to approximately 12,000 people gathered in the grand stand at Lakewood Park as the Southeastern World's Fair observed "Y. M. C. A. Day."

Nix, introduced by H. W. Rohrer, executive secretary of the Georgia Y. M. C. A., declared "our youth is strong and has developed that spiritual outlook so essential to the morale of our people.

"Our youth is giving to our nation that transfusion of love of decency, power of right, courage and vitality of patriotism so that our democracy may feed on and strengthen, can stand supreme, and so that every heartbeat can be that of an inspired American.

"The Y. M. C. A. has helped to build our land by aiding in building our youth. They help to build us up physically and spiritally.

"Physical and spiritual strength are badly needed now if we are going to continue our free and unfettered way of life and if we are going to continue our free and uninterrupted course of life."

Preceding the address, a musical program, arranged by the Y. M. C. A., was presented.

California Asks Death Penalty For Tons of Predatory Goldfish

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 28.—(AP)—So you think of goldfish as harmless little parlor pets?

Then you should talk to Spence D. Turner, Los Angeles county's chief forester. He has as much affection for a pine beetle because of what goldfish have done to fishing in Crystal lake, high up in San Gabriel mountains.

There tons of the harmless little parlor pets have turned predatory, destroying thousands of trout and other game fish.

Here's Turner's account of how it all started:

"A number of years ago a woman living near by had several pet goldfish. She had to make a trip back east. She couldn't take the fish with her, so she turned them loose in the lake."

Now the situation is so serious an extermination campaign has been planned.

Large bags of mud and powdered timbo root from South America will be dragged from motor rowboats. Turner says the mixture will drug the lake sufficiently to temporarily paralyze the gills of all the fish. The game fish will float to the top, be gathered off in boats and will get a new start in another lake. For the goldfish, it will be curtains.

Gallup Poll Reveals:

1 in 4 Making Defense Sacrifice

By GEORGE GALLUP.

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 28.—As the defense program gathers speed in United States cities and towns, Washington officials have come out almost daily to warn of a multitude of adjustments and sacrifices which may be necessary in the life of the average American citizen.

To measure the "pinch" of defense sacrifices felt by the average man thus far—and also to see how successful Washington's campaign of warning has been—the institute has discussed the question of sacrifices with a cross-section of men and women in every state in the Union.

The study reveals at least two significant developments to date:

1. Three-fourths of the American people, or roughly 60,000,000 men and women, are not yet conscious of having made any special personal sacrifices as the result of war abroad and defense at home. Actually, of course, many Americans have been econonomically better off in recent months because of booming unemployment and wage rises. But this is only part of the story.

2. For an equally large majority of Americans believe that they will be called on to make sacrifices and "do without things" in the next 12 months.

Twenty-six per cent of those interviewed said they had already had to make adjustments or personal sacrifices as a result of the present war. Seventy-four per cent said they had not.

At the present time, the survey shows, eastern voters are more conscious of personal sacrifices connected with the defense effort than voters elsewhere. Men and women in the west, and especially along the Pacific coast, report fewer individuals affected thus far.

The institute asked people who said they were already conscious of making sacrifices what kinds of adjustments they had had to make.

By far the most frequent answers had to do with higher prices for foods and household goods—resulting in a generally higher cost of living.

But when the same voters were asked whether they anticipated sacrifices of some kind in the next 12 months, 76 per cent said they did expect to make such sacrifices, while 12 per cent thought they would not have to, and 12 per cent were undecided on the question.
